NEW ASSAULT ON VERDUN

TEUTON ATTACK SMASHED, SAYS LLOYD-GEORGE

Present Offensive Yanks Initiative from Germans, Declares Leader.

TALKS TO WAR BODY.

LONDON, July 13.—David Lloyd George, British minister of war, presiding today at an entente allied conference on the western front, declared that the combined offensive of the allies had wrenched the initiative from the Germans, never, he trusted, to return.

"We have crossed the watershed," he said, "and now victory is beginning to turn in our direction. This change is due to the improvement in our equipment."

The conference was held at the war office and was participated in by Albert Thomas, French minister of munitions; Gen. Bellair, assistant minister of war of Russia; Gen. A. Dail, 'Olio, member of the British ministry of war, and the new British minister of munitions, Edwin S. Mott.

Times of Allies Change.

"Since our last munitions conference," Mr. Lloyd George said, "there has been a considerable change in the fortunes of the allies. On that date the great Champagne offensive in the west had just failed to attain its objective and the French and British armies had sustained heavy losses without the achievement of any particular success. In the east the enemy had pressed the gallant armies of Russia back some hundred miles, and the Balkans had just been overrun by the central powers."

"The overwhelming victories since won by the valiant soldiers of Russia have struck terror into the hearts of our foes, and these, coupled with the immortal defense of Verdun by our indomitable French comrades, and the brave resistance of the Italians against overwhelming odds in the southern Alps, have changed the whole complexion of the landscape."

"Why have our prospects improved?" the answer, he, the equipment of our armies has improved enormously and is continuing to improve.

Many Men Needed for Navy.

"The British navy will recently have absorbed more than half the metal works of this country. The task of building new ships and repairing the old ones for the gigantic navy and fitting and supplying them occupied the energies of a million men."

"Every month we are turning out hundreds of guns and howitzers, light, medium, and heavy. Our heavy guns are being fired at a great rate, and we are turning out nearly twice as much ammunition in a single week as we did a year ago, nearly three times as much heavy shells as we fired for the great offensive in September, although the ammunition expended in that battle was the result of many weary weeks' accumulation."

"The new factories and workshops we set up have not yet attained one-third their full capacity, but their output is now increasing with great rapidity. Our main difficulties in organization, construction, equipment, labor supply and administration have been solved. If official, employers, and workmen keep at it with the same zeal and assiduity as they have hitherto employed, our supplies will soon be overwhelming."

Asks Men to Forego Holidays.

The entente allied offensive on the western front is only in its beginning, declared Premier Asquith today in announcing in the house of commons that the government had decided to ask workers to forego their August holidays because of the demand for munitions in France. He expressed confidence that the workmen would co-operate in this plan so as to make it effective in Great Britain's foes that the offensive in its present intensity of bombardment and assault, would, if necessary, be "continued indefinitely."

The premier also announced that by royal proclamation the August bank holidays would be postponed, and he appealed to all classes for postponement of all holidays until further and definite progress of the offensive had been secured.

Offensive Just Started.

"That offensive," he continued, "is only in its beginning and it necessarily requires for its success a continuous supply of munitions of all kinds."

Oak Park Guard Company Goes to La Salle Strike

Company D Called by Governor Who Goes to Labor War Scene.

OTHER MILITIA SENT

Oak Park national guardsmen were speeding to La Salle, Ill., this morning for strike duty.

Company D, Sixth Infantry, was ordered out late last night by Gov. Duane to aid in suppressing violence at the cement workers' strike.

Within four hours the Oak Park company, including eighty-five men, was on a special Rock Island train en route.

Capt. George W. Armstrong summoned his men by telephone and got them going in record time.

DUNNE GOES TO SCENE.

Springfield, Ill., July 13.—Five companies of the Sixth Infantry, I. N. G., tonight were at La Salle and Oglesby, Ill., rushing there to assist the sheriff of La Salle county in suppressing acts of violence among the 1,200 cement workers who had been on strike for nine weeks.

Adit. Gen. Dickson, commander of all Illinois troops, departed for the scene tonight and tomorrow morning will assume personal charge of the situation.

Gov. Dunne said tonight he would go to La Salle early in the morning "to get first hand information of the situation, and if the opportunity presents itself to do everything possible toward settling the strike."

A and B Companies, each about forty men strong, from Rock Island and Geneseo, respectively, reached La Salle early tonight.

C company of Galesburg has been ordered to leave immediately on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, D company of Oak Park will leave Chicago on the Rock Island and E company will leave Sterling on the Interurban and at Dixon will board an Illinois Central train for La Salle.

At the request of city and county officials at La Salle, Gov. Dunne this morning ordered out two companies, which arrived at La Salle at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

SPAIN UNDER MARTIAL LAW. DUE TO BIG RAIL STRIKE.

Government Takes Drastic Step After Earlier Declaration Placing Madrid Under Siege.

MADRID, via Paris, July 13.—In view of the railroad strike, the government has suspended the constitutional guarantees and martial law has been proclaimed throughout Spain tonight. King Alfonso has arrived at Madrid from La Granja. A general strike is announced for July 16.

The city and province of Madrid were declared by the government in a state of siege earlier.

The strike began on the Northern railroad on June 11 and is reported to have spread, not merely to the other railroads of Spain, but to the industries in the great industrial centers of Barcelona, Madrid, Valencia, Bilbao, and Oviedo.

The primary cause of the strike was the refusal of the Northern Railways company to increase wages, but there has been growing unrest and serious disturbances in most of the provinces as a result of the increased cost of food caused by the great war.

'SCION OF FORD' LEADS GAY LIFE UNTIL TRAPPED

Blackstone Guest Wants to Buy $150,000 Home; Forgets Geography.

ESCORTED TO A TRAIN.

If the Detroit public schools had been just a little stricter regarding the requirements of the students in the matter of geography a certain young man might still be staying at the Blackstone and the $75 a plate dinner at which he was to play host two weeks hence might not have been indefinitely postponed.

But, as it happens, Bar Harbor is in Maine, instead of in Florida, and there are some Chicago real estate men who are wise geographically and otherwise.

"EDSON FORD" AT PHONE.

But to begin at the beginning, a Chicago real estate firm advertised a $150,000 north shore residence for sale. The advertisement appeared on a Sunday. On Tuesday the firm, W. K. Young & Bro., received a telephone call.

"This is Mr. Edson Ford talking," said the voice. "Son of Henry Ford of Detroit. I am stopping at the Blackstone. I saw your advertisement. I came to Chicago to look over that and other property with a view toward buying a home here. I am thinking of making my winter home here at last."

SALESMEN SEND UP CARDS.

Salemen were sent to the hotel. They sent their cards up to Mr. Edson Ford. He came down, a well-dressed man who might have stepped out of a collar advertisement. He wore a small mustache, twisted at the ends into miniature points. His blue cheviot suit of the latest pinch back cut with box plaits, fitted him as if he had been pushed into it. On either side of his shaggy summer tie were glimpses of a rainbow silk shirt. A glance told that his Panama was of the most expensive weave and pattern. He dangled an elaborate black mahogany cane.

CALL MOTOR CAR.

He invited the real estate men into the grill. After a short chat an automobile was summoned.

"Have you any choice as to location?" Inquired W. F. Blackless, one of the salesmen.

"O, no, not particularly," returned Mr. Ford, flecting a bit of dust from his sleeve.

"How much would you care to put into a place?"

"Well, I wouldn't consider anything less than $100,000. Not a penny less. In fact, about $150,000 would be nearer the proper figure, I should say."

"And you have no choice as to location?"

"Quite desirable north."

"Let me see. Evanston is north, isn't it? Well, I think I'd rather look at the place you advertised first. It's quite desirable north, isn't it? Well, I want the best."

A trip was made to the property. It was just what he had been looking for.

He didn't want to close the deal right away, however, without first consulting his lawyer. A stop was made at the new Edgewater Beach hotel and Mr. Ford insisted on buying refreshments.

The next day the salesman called again to close the deal. Mr. Ford was still undecided. He would like to look at a few other places. More motor rides followed, and more luncheons.

THAT WINTER HOME SLIP.

The conversation turned on Henry Ford's winter home.

"Yes, my father has a fine home at Miami, Fla.," said the prospective purchaser, "but you know I don't care for it down there. I can't stand the climate."

Mr. Blackless was under the impression the Ford winter home was at Fort Meyer, Fla. He had become slightly suspicious the day before and even had consulted the register at the Blackstone. But he had found "Edson Ford, Detroit," there all right.

"Which do you like best, the east or west coast of Florida?" Blackless asked by way of a feeler.

HE TAKES A CIGARET.

Mr. Ford hesitated, took a cigaret from his gold case, tapped the end of it rhythmically on the closed box, and replied "I like the east coast best. My favorite place is Bar Harbor."

Mr. Blackless smiled inwardly. He

If You Fall for Oratory, Hide Your Bank Roll

Young Woman Gets Bob Sweitzer with Appeal for Kiddies.

THOSE SHADY NOOKS

If you have a five dollar bill to throw at the birds keep it for a young woman who reels off an interesting story about how she is trying to give some poor children an outing in the country. She may call on you today. Among her victims yesterday was County Clerk Robert Sweitzer.

Bob was stung for a flinn. Sexton & Co., wholesale grocers, also contributed $5.00 and so did Miss Wilson of the Hearst building. They thought they were aiding the Paulet Fathers, whom the young woman said she represented. The money was to be used in sending Italian and Polish children to parts rural.

Sweitzer Not Sorry.

Bob Sweitzer said it was worth $5 to listen to the conversation she hands out. She gained admittance to the county clerk's private office by a forged letter of introduction, signed "Paulet Fathers."

"You will pardon the intrusion," is the way she begins. If the intended victim looks into her melting eyes he is gone.

"Your name was given to me," she continues, "as a friend of the poor children who never get away from the city. We have a place up in the country, near Fox Lake, where we can send them at a cost of $25.00 a week. That includes railroad fare."

"We have twenty kiddies there now. It would do your heart good to hear their merry laughter as they romp over the green fields or go swimming in shady pools. The birds warble their sweetest melodies and all nature seems to be in tune at the spot we have selected for our camp."

Not Forgetting the Dells.

"There are sylvan nooks and bosky dells all around. At night the whippoorwill sings the camp to sleep. And in the morning the children are awakened by the lark."

By this time the victim is shoving his hand in his pocket. He asks how much is expected, and the young woman lets him off easy with a $5 contribution.

What's her name? The police would like to know.

MRS. HEARST DEMANDS U. S. PROTECT RANCH IN MEXICO

Protests Reported Seizure of Property by Carranza Government in Telegram to Secretary Lansing.

San Francisco, Cal., July 13.—Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, owner of the Hacienda de Babiorra, the ranch reported to have been seized by the de facto government of Mexico, telegraphed tonight to Robert Lansing, secretary of state, protesting against what she declared to be an "unlawful act." The telegram said:

"San Francisco newspapers contain the report that the de facto government of Mexico has taken possession of the property in the state of Chihuahua, known as the Hacienda de Babiorra, the stock of which belongs to me."

"The reason assigned for this action is that the Babiorra Development company has sold cattle and supplies to the United States authorities to provision and care for the military forces of the United States."

"I vigorously protest against this unlawful action on the part of the de facto government, and I appeal to you to inaugurate immediately an inquiry to ascertain the facts regarding the alleged appropriation of the company's property."

"As a citizen of the United States I suggest to you that it is the duty of this government to take measures to prevent the de facto government of Mexico from disregarding and overriding the rights of American citizens who own property in the republic of Mexico."

GET ALLEGED TRAIN ROBBER

Denver Police Arrest One of Gang Charged with Stealing $1,000,000 in Unsigned Bank Notes.

Denver, Colo., July 13.—To the surprise of many friends he has made in religious circles, Edward Dices of Atlanta, Ga., was in police custody today, awaiting removal to Baltimore on the charge of being a member of the gang which robbed a B. & O. train of $1,000,000 in unsigned national bank notes at Central Station, W. Va., last October.

When trapped in the Y. M. C. A. here, where he has resided under the name of Joseph Meyers, Dices threw away $1,000 of the stolen notes. Dices was known for studious, quiet habits since coming to the local Y. M. C. A. early in June.

BOY KILLS HIS MOTHER.

New Orleans, La., July 13.—[Special.]—William Zimmer, 13 years old, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. May Zimmer, today. He had gone to try and get his mother to be reconciled with his father, whom she left four days ago. He accused her of attacking him with a broom. He carried the revolver wrapped in a piece of newspaper and fired through it.

WHEN INTERNATIONAL LAW IS IRKSOME TO COMBATANTS

The Germans Find It a Great Handicap in Their Submarine Warfare.

And Now the Entente Allies Find It a Great Handicap in Their Operations Against German Commerce.

PEACE WITH AUSTRIA SEEN IN RUSSIAN COUNCIL MOVE.

Ministers Leave Petrograd for Imperial Field Headquarters—Overtures Acceptable to tors of Souville, Chenais, and La Luffe.

In the Vosges an attack by the enemy upon one of our trenches south of Carbach has been repulsed after a spirited engagement with hand grenades.

BRITISH LINES ADVANCE.

LONDON, July 13.—The British official statement tonight shows that heavy infantry and artillery fighting has been in progress and has enabled the British to maintain their pressure on the Germans and advance their line at various points.

The British forces at Mametz wood are within 200 yards of the German second line. The French forces are separated only by the narrow Somme valley from the German third line through Peronne and Mont St. Quentin, and both armies are doubtless engaged in preparations for the next attacks.

Attempts of the Germans to raid trenches west of Wyszczet and south of La Bassee canal were frustrated.

A remarkably brief French official statement simply records the continuance of the bombardment at Fort Souville, in the Verdun region.

Berlin today in its official report admits for the first time that the British have taken the town of Contalmaison, between the Ancre and the Somme rivers.

Advance at Some Points.

The official statement issued tonight reads:

The artillery on both sides has been active throughout the day. As a result of sharp infantry fighting we are not only maintaining our pressure on the enemy but have appreciably advanced our line at various points on the battle front.

In one sector of the front we have captured some German howitzers, with a quantity of ammunition. These will be used against the enemy at a suitable opportunity.

An earlier statement, which is timed 2 o'clock this afternoon, follows:

Heavy artillery duels were in progress in certain sectors of the battle area since the last report and fighting continued at various points on the front, but there has been no change in the situation on any part of our lines.

West of Wyszczet and south of La Bassee canal the enemy attempted to raid our trenches, but he was driven off in each case by our fire.

Despite unfavorable weather, our aeroplanes have been constantly at work. Hostile machines were active, but all their attacks on our aeroplanes operating over the German lines were repulsed. One of our aeroplanes is missing.

Second Phase of Offensive.

The second phase of the British offensive is approaching a crisis in the battle northeast of Albert, where British troops are striving to advance two miles eastward to the heights of Martinpuich.

The Germans have thrown two whole army corps into action on both sides of the Albert-Bapaume road to defend the approaches to Bapaume. They are making the most savage counter attacks, particularly southeast of Contalmaison, where a German success would hold up the whole British advance.

German correspondents, admitting the great power of the British offensive, claim that the attacking forces have suffered heavy losses, comparable only to the casualties at Verdun. British correspondents report that the English losses have been severe only in the death grapple for possession of villages, where German machine guns have played on the British lines.

Berlin Admits Loss.

BERLIN, July 13.—In the section of today's German official report dealing with the operations in the western theater, it was announced that British forces had established themselves in the town of Contalmaison, between the Ancre and Somme rivers.

Artillery fire continued with great intensity. Yesterday, south of the Somme, the French met with no success in attacks which they several times began on both sides of Barleux and near and west of Estrees. They were compelled to turn back under our effective curtain of fire, suffering the most severe sanguinary losses.

The British have established themselves in Contalmaison.

East of the Meuse artillery fighting continues active. Infantry positions have been consolidated. The number of prisoners has increased by seventeen officers and 243 men and now stands at fifty-six officers and 2,340 men.

Near Frellingheim, on La Bassee canal, on La Pille Morte height, east of Badonvillers and near Hiersbach, German patrol engagements were successful.

North of Solsoyons a French biplane was compelled to land within our lines.

SECOND U-BOAT ON WAY TO U. S.; OTHERS BUILDING

Third Ready for Sea, Fourth Soon Will Be, and Two Others Being Rushed.

BY KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(Copyright, 1916, By Press Publishing Company (New York World).)

BERLIN, July 12, via London, July 13.—The third German submarine freight blockade runner of the Deutschland type is finished, a fourth is nearing completion, and two others, on the stocks, are being rushed as fast as possible. That is the information from an unobtainable source which is in a position to know.

The Bremen, the second of the invisible fleet, is reported en route to some port, presumably in America. From a reliable source in touch with shipbuilding yards, government and naval circles, emanate reports of tremendous activity in turning out submarines as never before. Shipbuilding yards whose specialty is submarines are working at high pressure.

A brief twenty-six word Reuter dispatch from London hinting that in Washington it is recognized that the Deutschland is an unnamed freighter, affords great satisfaction and pleasure here.

Thousands Visit Ship.

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—[Special.]—Thousands of persons have visited the dock where the Deutschland lies. Some have viewed the craft from the shore, but almost as many have come as close as the guards would allow in launches and yachts. Before the return cargo is placed aboard the vessel it will be inspected carefully.

Capt. Koenig, commander of the craft, and other officials today reiterated their declaration that under no circumstances will the Deutschland carry passengers on its return trip.

Bernstorff Sees U-Boat.

Count von Bernstorff visited the ship for an hour today. He inspected the boat from stem to stern, had the intricate machinery and instruments aboard explained to him, and personally congratulated Capt. Koenig upon bringing his vessel safely to America through waters infested with hostile warcraft.

Two attaches of the German embassy, the German and Austrian consuls in Baltimore, and Mayor Preston were with the ambassador on his visit to the submarine. The intense heat inside the hull of the vessel, generated by sun rays beating upon the deck and sides, prevented the party from remaining aboard longer than an hour.

Will Send Back Mail.

The ambassador informed Capt. Koenig that he would send him before the Deutschland starts on its return voyage several packages of official papers which he desires to have delivered intact to the Berlin foreign office. Some of these documents embassy officials have been reluctant to trust in the regular mails because it was considered likely they would fall into the hands of the British censors.

The ambassador, who was told nothing about his narrow escape, was enthusiastic as he emerged from the conning tower of the Deutschland.

"It is a wonderful boat, and with as courageous a crew as ever sailed the sea, as made a wonderful voyage," said he, "I climbed up and down every hatchway, looked into every compartment, and had my first experience with a periscope. Capt. Koenig did not tell me just when he expects to leave for Germany, but I presume it will be soon after he has his return cargo aboard. He is in complete charge of the vessel and has his orders from Berlin; his craft is a private one, just as much so as any North German Lloyd liner. My visit was entirely unofficial."

Luncheon for Captain.

The ambassador arrived in Baltimore this afternoon from New York. Prior to visiting the submarine he attended a

War to Last at Least a Year Dr. Aked Is Told in Germany

(By Associated Press.)

STOCKHOLM, June 21.—[Correspondence.]—Regardless of the decision history ultimately will record as to victor and vanquished in the great North sea naval fight of May 31 and June 1, there is no denying the fact that the battle brought a sudden stiffening to the so-called "war party" in Germany. All talk of Germany being willing to end the war on a basis of the antebellum status quo ended.

It is being given out now in neutral Europe that Germany will require "a slight rectification of her frontier at the expense of Belgium." It is further asserted that it will be necessary for the central powers to keep a strip of Serbia in order that the railway to Constantinople shall always run through "friendly" country. Germany always has maintained that her colonies should be returned to her. It is now added that there must be compensation for German losses in the Congo, "something also must be done," it is stated, "to keep Belgium from being the vassal state of England."

Aked on Peace Mission.

The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked of San Francisco, one of the American delegates to the neutral conference for continuous mediation sitting in Stockholm, was in Berlin on a mission of peace at the time of the North sea fight. It is commonly reported he was there by invitation of the German government. At any rate, he seems to have had no difficulty in obtaining audiences with most of the higher officials. The peace conference had entertained the hope that Germany would outline peace terms of a character so extremely moderate as to command immediate respect in all the neutral countries, thus bringing about a public opinion to which belligerents eventually would have to listen.

Dr. Aked brought back a gloomy report. He is said to have suggested to Juncheon at the Germania club, given in honor of Capt. Koenig. Tonight he was present at a dinner given by Mayor Preston to the commander of the submarine. He made reservations on a late train for New York.

City officials who visited the submarine today quoted Capt. Koenig as saying that Zeppelin airship freighters are being built in Germany for transatlantic service.

"To you," Capt. Koenig was quoted as saying, "the trip of the Deutschland is a great achievement. You must be too enthusiastic over it, for a bigger surprise is coming. A great Zeppelin airship, or maybe I should say airships, are being built in Germany. They will sail through the air to the United States. Just as sure as the Deutschland came to America, so will the Zeppelins come."

Germany Building Eighty?

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Dispatches from Copenhagen today quote German newspapers as asserting that eighty submarines of the Deutschland class now are being built and that twenty will be completed in August.

The Bremen, the second German submarine to start for America, will enter New York harbor before July 29 and dock at the North German Lloyd pier in Hoboken, it was reported in shipping circles this afternoon. Preparations for its arrival are now being made, it was said.

Decide on U-Boat Today.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Reports of customs and navy officers on the character of the German submarine Deutschland were the subject of a long conference at the state department today between Acting Secretary Polk and members of the government's neutrality board, called in to give informal advice. The department's final decision on the status of the submarine probably will be announced after tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

Capt. Hughes of the navy and Collector Ryan and Surveyor Steele of the Baltimore custom house, all of whom examined the vessel, have reported unanimously that it is an unarmed freight carrier.

Ends Life by Inhaling Gas.

Mrs. Tena Behlke of 1102 West North avenue, committed suicide by inhaling gas yesterday. She was found dead in the kitchen of her home by her husband, A. Behlke, who he returned from work. Gas was escaping from two burners. No motive for the suicide is known.

officials in Berlin that the neutral nations would not look with favor upon German retention of any of Belgium and to have received the answer:

"The neutral nations are not going to dictate to the 120,000,000 of the central powers. We have bought the land of Belgium with our blood. Germany must be protected against future attacks. Shall we give back all we have won at such great cost? Shall we give up the valuable coal and iron lands of France now in our hands? As to Serbia and Montenegro, they have had their lesson, I hope. We will leave Austria to deal with them."

See No Cession to War.

Even the extreme pacifists in Germany are said to have told the emissaries from the neutral conference that the time was not ripe for overtures of peace. Irrespective of the conflicting claims of victory, it was said the naval fight had lengthened the war by at least twelve months. The only thing the pacifists could do now was to wait for the right moment and seize it when it came.

On the Skokod there has been an artillery duel. Some squadrons of enemy aircraft flew about their lines dropping bombs and firing machine guns.

In Galicia, in the region west of the lower Strips, desperate fighting has occurred in many places, the enemy launching energetic counter attacks. We took more than 2,000 prisoners and captured guns and some machine guns.

German Official Statement.

BERLIN, July 13.—German troops under command of Gen. AUSTRIANS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO REGAIN GROUND

Suffer Heavy Losses in Attack on Positions Won Recently by Italians.

ROME, July 13, via London.—Austrian troops in the Adige valley, after a heavy bombardment, attacked the positions recently won by the Italians. The war office announced today that the Austrians had been driven back in disorder, with large losses. The statement follows:

In the Camonica valley there was marked activity on the part of the enemy's artillery, particularly in the Tonale region.

In the Adige yesterday afternoon, after artillery preparations on an immense scale, the enemy attacked our new positions north of Malgassagna, but were driven back in disorder, with heavy loss, by prompt and effective concentration of our fire.

On the remainder of the front to Brental we repulsed the enemy's lines heavily, and our infantry made attacks with some success at several points.

Attacks Repulsed, Says Vienna.

VIENNA, July 13.—The following official report was issued by the war office tonight:

We have repulsed further heavy attacks by the Italians on the Monte Rasta sector.

PLAN LOAN OF $100,000,000.

American Foreign Securities Company Organized to Help French Government.

New York, July 13.—A corporation to be known as the American Foreign Securities company will be organized by a group of bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Brown Bros. & Co. to loan $100,000,000 to the French government. It was formally announced here tonight.

The company will have a paid up capital of $10,000,000 and will issue three year 5 per cent notes to the amount of $90,000,000 in this market.

The notes are to be secured with a margin of 20 per cent by obligations of the governments of Argentina, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Holland, Uruguay, Egypt, Brazil, Spain, the Province of Quebec, shares of the Suez Canal company, and bonds and shares of American corporations. Application to list these notes on the New York stock exchange soon will be made.

ENGLISH LOSE 425 OFFICERS

LONDON, July 13.—The heavy price that the allies are paying for their success on the western front is shown in the British casualty lists issued in London tonight. These lists give the names of 425 officers, 99 of whom were killed.

MEXICANS STOP U. S. SHIPMENTS TO PERSHING MEN

Forbidden Use of Railroad to Take Forage After Recently Granting the Right.

El Paso, Tex., July 13.—Shipment of a thousand of forage, consigned over the Mexican Northwestern railway to Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, for use of Gen. J. Pershing's expeditionary command, was held up in Juarez tonight on orders from Gen. Francisco Gonzalez upon instructions from Gen. Jacinto Trevino in Chihuahua.

Shipments over the Mexican railway for the American troops in Mexico, which had been forbidden during the recent crisis, were only resumed by permission of the Mexican authorities this week. The motor supply train from the expeditionary base at Columbus to the field being practically impassable since the advent of the rainy season, the consignment was regarded as a vital one.

It is believed in most quarters that negotiations already under way with Mexico City through channels other than the military will clear away any misunderstanding which may have been responsible for the orders.

CARRANZA GAINS POINT.
Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Carranza has won his first point in the negotiations with the United States.

On his insistence, the administration today lifted the embargo on all supplies except munitions, which it put into effect through instructions to consular and treasury officials when war recently was declared.

Carranza's demand that the embargo on general supplies be lifted is only preliminary to his demand that the embargo on munitions be raised. He will insist that, if this is not done, it will be impossible for him to maintain order in northern Mexico. He has already advised the United States he is powerless to stop raiding across the border and to wipe out bandit organizations because of the shortage of arms and ammunition.

Troop Recall Prepared.
From high administration officials the information was forthcoming today that the president contemplates withdrawing Gen. Pershing's column just as rapidly as possible.

The way for the withdrawal was paved today by the war department, which made public a report from Pershing saying that all of the Mexicans near his army now are friendly to the United States. He also pointed out that the approach of the rainy season will make conditions bad for the maintenance of his army in present location.

With the army out of Mexico, the administration plans to maintain the national guard along the border for a number of months. Then, in the negotiations with Carranza, the United States will insist that he carry out his promise to guard the border.

Raiders to Be Chased.
This country probably will demand the United States send troops after raiders in case they get through the Carranza guard and by the American army. In demanding this right, however, the United States will specifically agree to withdraw its soldiers as soon as the raiders have been driven far enough down into the Gulf of Mexico to handle them.

The formal statement announcing the relaxing of the embargo was made by Secretary of War Baker. It was: "Collectors of customs along the Mexican border have been instructed upon request of the state department to permit railroad rolling stock to enter Mexico on the basis of an equitable exchange of cars—that is, for every car permitted to enter Mexico there should be a car proceeding from Mexico to American territory."

"They have also been instructed not to interfere further with shipments of food and clothing intended for Mexico, but with the understanding that the present method of handling munitions of war destined to points in Mexico continue in force until further notice."

ORDERS AVIATION RESERVE.
President Plans to Enlist Many Expert Civilian Pilots in the Corps.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Wilson today directed the formation of a reserve of officers and men for the aviation corps of the army, in accordance with provisions of the army reorganization bill passed recently by congress. He instructed Secretary Baker to prepare a formal order. Information has been received that there are many expert civilian pilots willing to join the reserve.

Breezy Camp Notes

BROWNSVILLE SAN ANTONIO

Brownsville, Tex., July 13.—[Special.]—Sergeant Walter L. Scheibel of the First Illinois cavalry machine gun troop didn't care to wait for Washington to supply the command with a machine gun. The troop flag—so he wrote his wife in Chicago about the deficiency, and she has made one. Its arrival is expected tomorrow.

The identity of the person who sent another trooper of Troop A to search for khaki umbrellas and the key to the parade ground has not been learned.

Corp. C. Hardwick of Troop M has a nice gentle pet in his tent, a tarantula as big as his hand. He caught it in his cot the other night and keeps it in a bottle.

Sergeant William Brayton has been elected director of the regimental glee club, and also will have charge of supervising the musical end of a minstrel show now in contemplation.

H. B. Donovan, quartermaster sergeant of Troop K, has been appointed to the real company clerk, James P. Hillock, is a graduate of Armour Institute of Technology and not the author of the letters which THE TRIBUNE printed, "Dear Sir and all." Now some of the men feel the letter reflects on them and they threaten to mob the man who wrote it.

There is one consolation about this, we can all get jobs as sewer diggers when we get back to Chicago. So some of the men feel the letter reflects on them and they threaten to mob the man who wrote it.

Private J. J. Kelly's collection of cavalry songs is not the least of the entertainment features provided by Troop F for the camp evening. Some one has suggested he have them published under the title "Rabel Lyrics."

Horned lizards are popular pets in Troop M, and Troop B possesses a turtle which follows the troop sentry and is so faithful that it will not wander to the premises of any other troop.

Lieut. Arthur C. Marriott is studying Spanish. A few days ago he bought a burro in Brownsville and a wagon was obtained to haul it to camp. While negotiating a haul to camp, the trooper and a burro took a tumble. Today Lieut. Marriott, while out riding, met a swarthy Mexican on the road and gave his Spanish a try-out with him. HUNTERS PATROL ATLANTIC COAST SEEKING SHARKS

Rewards Offered for Every Maneater Because of Attacks Made on Bathers.

New York, July 13.—Armed shark hunters in motor boats patrolled the New York and New Jersey coast today while others lined the beaches in a concerted effort to exterminate the man-eaters which have moved north from their customary haunts, apparently in large numbers. The village authorities of Matawan, N. J., offered a reward of $100 for every shark brought in, dead or alive.

The belief that a single shark was responsible for the killing of four swimmers in New Jersey waters within the last two weeks, two of them yesterday in Matawan creek, a shallow inlet sixteen miles from the open sea, has been dispelled by persons who actually have seen a half dozen or more of the man-eaters.

Little Refuse for Sharks.
One theory is that sharks, which formerly fed on refuse thrown overboard from the many ocean steamships that plied before the war began, now have become ravenous. Even those not ordinarily classed as man-eaters, it is said, probably have been driven by starvation to lurk in the waters of the Atlantic coast, warm at this season, and attack human beings.

Three of the huge fishes were seen today in Matawan creek and now are believed to be bottled up there. Nets have been stretched under a bridge about a mile and a half from the mouth of the inlet to prevent egress into Raritan bay. A British ship arriving from Bermuda was reported tonight to have killed a score of sharks during the voyage, one of them off the New Jersey coast.

Wire Nets at Beaches.
Terror has seized the multitudes who have bathed at beaches along the New York and New Jersey coasts, and comparatively few persons now venture into the water. At Asbury Park and other New Jersey resorts wire nets have been strung around the bathing areas.

Dr. George B. Reynolds of Matawan, who attended Stanley Fisher, who was seriously mangled in a battle with a shark yesterday that he died a few hours later, performed an autopsy on Fisher's body. He declared he found that the flesh torn by the man-eater's teeth was impregnated with a peculiar poisonous liquid which seemed to have a deadening effect on the nerves and muscles. This probably explained, he said, why Fisher apparently had little sensation of pain when the shark took off his leg.

Boy's Body Not Found.
Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the body of 12-year-old Lester Stillwell, the other victim of the Matawan creek tragedy. It is believed that he was devoured by the shark, as persistent dragging of the inlet and dynamiting of the waters have failed to bring up his body.

Many conflicting reports were received here during the day from various points along the New York and New Jersey coasts regarding the killing of sharks, but only one appears to have had any foundation in fact. This was the news brought in by Anthony Lauro, captain of a fishing boat, who said his party of New York fishermen had clubbed to death a nine foot shark, weighing 400 pounds, while cruising yesterday off Elberon, N. J.

A fisherman reported tonight that he had vainly tried to kill with an ear a seven foot shark which became entangled in his nets. He said it tried to strike his boat, apparently intending to overturn her craft.

Judge Sabbath Takes Oath.
Judge Joseph Sabbath was formally sworn in yesterday as a judge of the Superior court. The oath was administered by Judge Michael L. McKinley, acting chief justice of the Superior court. Judge Sabbath was appointed by Gov. Dumm to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Richard E. Burke.

VILLA LEADING MEN TO BORDER?

Reports Say Bandit Chief Again Is Threat to Americans.

CLOSE GUARD IS KEPT.

San Antonio, Tex., July 13.—A large band of Villistas, probably headed by Villa himself, is headed determinedly toward Ojinaga, opposite the Presidio, Tex., according to reports received at army headquarters here early today.

Information indicating that the garrison at Ojinaga would join Villa's men also was received. The information contained no intimation that Col. Rojas, commanding at Ojinaga, was lacking in loyalty, but doubt of his ability to hold his 700 men was expressed. Many of them formerly were in Villa's command.

Army officers here were convinced that Villa personally is directing rebel operations south and east of Chihuahua, and that after attacking a force of the de facto government troops near Parral he sent one detachment of his newly formed army in a northerly direction.

Troop movements in the Big Bend district and at other points along the border were continued with the idea of tightening the patrol.

Searchlights Sweep Border.
Early this morning searchlights were directed on hill tops and other vantage points near the Mexican border here. Now have made it practically impossible for any military activity to be conducted near the border under cover of darkness.

A trainload of fifty-four motor trucks for the use of the regular and state troops here were received at the military encampment today. Twenty-five trucks, similar to those in use by Gen. Pershing's expedition, already are in service.

Suspect Trevino's Loyalty.
El Paso, Tex., July 13.—Information received here that Gen. Trevino furnished Villa with munitions cast doubt today on Trevino's reports of attacks by his men on the bandits operating in the Parral district.

Carranza agents have furnished United States officials here with detailed charges of a plot by Trevino to assist the rebel movement in northern Mexico, with the ultimate purpose of replacing Villa at its head.

Arrivals from Chihuahua today stated that Gen. Trevino has imprisoned Gen. Jose Ynes Salazar and Marcelo Caraveo, former El Paso commanders who were recently granted amnesty by Obregon. Trevino was ordered by Obregon a week ago to give both men commands in the Carranza division of the north.

Defection Denied by Trevino.
Chihuahua, Mexico, July 13.—Gen. Trevino today issued a formal denial that he had made any sort of disavowal of Gen. Carranza. This, he said, was in answer to statements published in the United States to the effect that he had revolted against the first chief.

URGE HONOR TO LAFAYETTE.
New York, July 13.—An appeal to all patriotic societies in the country to celebrate appropriately the anniversary of the birth of Gen. Lafayette on Sept. 6 was made today by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Watterson, Joseph H. Choate, and other prominent men. The larger cities which possess statues of Lafayette are particularly urged to arrange elaborate ceremonies.

"You Should Eat More Beans & Less Meat"

Dyer's Pork and Beans are digestible. The Dyer process of cooking makes them so. They are delicately flavored and appetizing, which in itself is an aid to digestion.

Dyer's Beans contain about 24% of rich body-building proteins—the elements that supply food to bone, muscle and blood.

Beef contains only about 20% of protein, besides being more difficult for most persons to assimilate. Eggs contain about 12½%, bread only about 6½%.

Get the Very Best Beans

Open any can of Dyer's and compare it with any other can on the market. In spite of the fact that our price is lower you will be forced to admit that our quality is higher.

SQUARE DEALING FOR IMMIGRANT, PLEA BY WILSON

President, in Speech, Says America Should Set Example for the World.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Wilson, speaking before the citizens' convention today, urged that the United States should set an example for the world by treating the immigrant with a square deal.

"We ought to be careful to maintain a government at which the immigrant can look with the closest scrutiny and to which he should be at liberty to address this question: 'You declare this to be a land of liberty and of equality and of justice; have you made it so by your laws? We ought to be able to see it in your schools, in your night schools, and in every other method of instructing these people, to show them that just has been our endeavor.'"

"Our object is to get these people in harness and see to it that they do not do any damage and are not allowed to indulge the passions which would bring injustice and calamity upon a nation whose object is spiritual and not material."

"This process of Americanization is going to be a process of self-examination, a process of purification, a process of redemption to the things which America represents and is proud to represent. And it takes a great deal more courage and steadfastness, my fellow citizens, to represent ideal things than to represent anything else. It is easy to lose your temper and hard to keep it. It is easy to strike and sometimes very difficult to refrain from striking, and I think you will agree with me that we are most justified in being proud of doing the things that are hard to do and not the things that are easy."

Leaders in Thoughtfulness.

"You do not settle things quickly by taking what seems to be the quickest way to settle them. You may make the complication just that much the more profound and inextricable, and, therefore, what I believe America should do is to show everything else is the sovereignty of thoughtfulness and sympathy and vision, as against the grosser impulses of mankind. No nation can live without vision, and no vision will exist a nation except the vision of real liberty and real justice and purity of conduct."

Natural born Americans were warned by the president to examine themselves carefully to see whether they were burning in them the true light of America which they expect to show to these foreigners.

Must Possess Spirit First.

"My interest in this movement," he said, "is as much an interest in ourselves as in the people whom we wish to Americanize. Unless we are true Americans we cannot infect them with the spirit of Americanism. Unless we ourselves illustrate the ideas of justice and freedom we can teach nothing to those who come to us."

"We have been disturbed recently by symptoms in the body politic," he added, "which are not healthy. Certain men, not many in number, have thought more of the lands of their birth than of America. They have even gone so far as to draw apart in spirit and organization to seek some special object of their own. Such a thing as this is absolutely incompatible with the idea of loyalty."

LANDSDOWNE WRITES REPLY TO CHARGES BY REDMOND.

Says He Made Statement Regarding Government of Ireland After Consulting Prime Minister.

LONDON, July 13.—The Marquis of Lansdowne, replying to John Redmond's charge that his speech in the house of lords on Tuesday was a declaration of war against Ireland, announced that the speech was made after consultation with Premier Asquith and other members of the government.

"In making my statement," he writes, "as to the permanent character of certain provisions of the amending bill, I did not intend to go, and I do not consider that I did go, beyond the declaration made by the prime minister in the house of commons that the union of six counties with the rest of Ireland could only be brought about with the free and consent of the excluded areas."

"My statement with regard to the government of Ireland during the interval which must elapse between the present moment and the passing of the amending bill represented what I believe to be the views of the government."

URGE SPEED IN NAVY MEASURE

Senators Discuss Bill as It Comes Up for Passage; Success Seems Sure.

LODGE IS ELOQUENT.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Politics began to sizzle at the senate end of the capitol today when the naval appropriation bill was called up for passage by Senator Tillman of South Carolina, chairman of the naval affairs committee.

Republican and Democratic senators urged their colleagues to hasten the passage of the measure. The Democrats spoke of it as an evidence of the intention of the administration to prepare the country for any eventuality. The Republicans said its enactment was absolutely essential to the safety of the country in view of the paucity of the administration during the last three years.

Calls Battleships Soothing.

Senator Lodge started the political fireworks when he asserted that "battleships have a more soothing effect and do more to promote a kindly feeling towards the United States than the most lavish employment of the resources of the English language."

At the close of the debate it appeared certain that the measure would pass in practically the form it was reported, carrying $315,000,000 in appropriations and providing for the carrying out of the administration's original five year building program in three years.

Senator Lewis amended the senate when he supported Senator Phelan's amendment for the creation of another naval academy. Senator Phelan wanted it located on the Pacific coast. Senator Lewis portrayed the beauties of a location along Lake Michigan and recalled the senate's mind to the fact that only a few years ago, in 1812, the United States made war on the great lakes.

Situation Has Changed.

"Since that time," he said, "our neighbor to the north has been regarded more as a hostile than a friendly power, and now, with an army incomparably superior to our own, she may well be regarded as a menace in case this country ever desires to insist upon any program not approved by Great Britain."

Senator Lodge confined his discussion largely to the effect the measure's passage would have on the present international situation.

"If there are any nations," he said, "either in the west or in the east, which have hostile feelings towards this country, or cherish sinister designs, they will take notice of the authorizations contained in this bill."

Money Well Spent—Lodge.

"Money spent on the American navy, in my opinion, is the most economical expenditure which will be made by this campaign."

"It cannot be cheaply done. To attempt to do it cheaply will be the fastest kind of economy."

Senator Lodge said the time had come when congress and the country must make up their minds to have one fleet for the Atlantic and another for the Pacific.

"No longer," he said, "can we depend upon one great main fleet for this country's protection."

GEN. WOOD SAYS SURGICAL AID IS STILL A NEED

Urges Women to Continue in This Branch of Preparedness.

The necessity for continuing the emergency surgical preparations here and throughout the country in spite of the present outlook for no war with Mexico was emphasized yesterday by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood in a note to one of the Chicago women who have been leading in this branch of the preparedness movement.

Gen. Wood's letter, written from Governor's Island, New York, was addressed to Mrs. R. R. McCormick. In it the general says:

"I am very glad to know that you are going to get up a reserve surgical supply for home emergency. I consider this work most important. In case of any sudden emergency there would be a great demand for surgical dressing, and without any question whatever a great shortage and an inevitable delay."

I trust the women who are working with you will appreciate the importance of this work and will bend every energy to building up a very large reserve."

'SCION OF FORD' LEADS GAY LIFE UNTIL TRAPPED

tried again. He had noticed in a society magazine an item announcing the engagement of the son of Henry Ford to a Miss Chaslin, daughter of the president of the Hudson Motor Car company.

"You are to be congratulated on your coming marriage, Mr. Ford," he said.

"Yes, indeed. She's a very sensible girl—very. But you know I don't think we shall be married for at least a year yet—if at all."

"Yes; you see, she's a blonde and I haven't fully made up my mind yet whether I prefer blondes or brunettes."

No more business was discussed that day. Yesterday morning members of the firm decided to trap the young man. He was the one who was going to buy the house. He sent me here to look over some property for him and told me to say I was the son of Henry Ford. He paid all my expenses."

"Well, you'll have to pack up and leave here," said Manager Tompkins. "We can't have impostors here. I'd have you arrested but for the fact you've paid your bills and I don't know what charge could be lodged against you."

The young man was escorted to his room where in his baggage was found five boxes of talcum powder with puffs, several silk pajamas, nine boxes of candy, five silk kimonos, and many bottles of perfume.

Young Glimmer said he wanted to go to an aunt in Jopka, Mich. Assistant Manager Billingsley of the hotel escorted him to the train.

Blames Gotham Millionaire.

"I wouldn't have said I was Ford if Mr. Regal Payette hadn't told me to. He's a New York millionaire, but he's in St. Louis now stopping at a hotel. He was the one who was going to buy the house. He sent me here to look over some property for him and told me to say I was the son of Henry Ford. He paid all my expenses."

Blakeslee questioned him about the General hospital in Detroit, to which Henry Ford has given several hundred thousand dollars, and about certain well known persons in the Michigan city. As the young man was getting deeper and deeper into difficulty, R. J. Tompkins, manager of the hotel, rushed up to the party with a telegram. He handed it to the guest.

Here Comes the Expose.

It read as follows:

Edsel Ford is in Detroit today. Man claiming to be son of Henry Ford at Blackstone impostor.

FORD MOTOR CO.

The young man was then faced with the discrepancy between the name he had registered under and that of the son of the automobile manufacturer. He had signed as "Edson" instead of Edsel Ford.

Finally he admitted he was not Ford's son.

"Here's my name," he said, pulling a card from his pocket. It read, "Noble Miller Glimmer."

"That's my real name," he said. "My father is the head of the Detroit water works and I am a student in the Central High school in Detroit. I'm only 17 years old."

SEE CITY FREED OF LABOR CRAFT BY CONVICTIONS

Unionists and Business Men
Praise Jury for Verdicts
Against Fourteen.

The backbone of the power of unscrupulous business agents and grafting labor officials in Chicago has been broken so thoroughly that probably will be many years before they can again terrify the city with wrecking crews and midnight glass smashing campaigns such as have been conducted in the last few years.

This was the consensus of opinion expressed last night by both business men and members of organized labor in regard to the verdict returned in Judge Scanlan's court yesterday convicting fourteen of the seventeen defendants in the labor conspiracy cases.

High Praise for Jury.
Probably no jury in Cook county ever received higher praise for its work.

"It is a great victory for law and order in our community," said State's Attorney Joyce. "Citizens of all classes, even members of labor unions, were made to feel the sting of these false leaders. Three of the jurors were union men. Others in the past had been affiliated with union organizations. The honesty and fearlessness of this jury cannot be praised too highly. I propose to continue further investigations and prosecutions."

Judge Scanlan likened the jurors to heroes, declaring they had done as great a service to their country as the men along the Rio Grande.

The verdict was praised by S. M. Hastings, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, who said the association stands for the punishment of law-breaking manufacturers as well as labor agitators.

List of Defendants.
The verdicts returned in the seventeen cases follow:

GUILTY—THREE YEARS.
CROWLEY, CHARLES, business agent of the furniture hangers' union.

MADDER, FRID, business agent of the furniture hangers' union.

GUILTY—TWO YEARS.
HAHN, HUGO, business agent of the glaziers' union.

STALEY, WALTER E., business agent of the glaziers' union.

STEWART, RAY, business agent of the wood finishers' union.

GUILTY—ONE YEAR.
CURRAN, FRANK, business agent of the Painters' District Council, No. 14.

GUILTY—FINED.
CLEARY, JOHN E., business agent of the Electrical Workers' union, local 134.

GORDON ISRAEL, former business agent of Painters' District Council; $2,000.

GRASS, HARRY P., former business agent of Painters' District Council; $2,000.

NESTOR, WILLIAM E., former business agent of Painters' District Council; $2,000.

HANSON, CHARLES, business agent of local 67 of the painters' union; $1,500.

MURPHY, JOHN W., former business agent of electrical workers' union; $500.

PEKESMA, NICHOLAS, former business agent of Painters' District Council; $750.

TUCKREITER, GEORGE, business agent of Painters' District Council; $500.

ACQUITTED.
CLAUSE, WILLIAM, business agent of the furniture hangers' union.

KELLY, THOMAS, business agent of electrical workers' union.

WHITE, JOHN, former business agent of the Painters' District Council.

Guilt Certain; Say Judge.
Judge Scanlan will hear arguments on a motion of the defense for a new trial this morning merely as a matter of formality in order to keep the record clear.

"In the opinion of the court the guilt of these men has been fixed to a mathematical certainty," he said yesterday.

At the suggestion of Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Rader, who said refusal to hear arguments might result in error, however, he consented to hear arguments.

Attorney Benedict J. Short announced the cases would be appealed to the Supreme court if necessary, but anyone who have followed the case have expressed the opinion that such a step would merely mean added expense, as the record is so clear a reversal would hardly come within the realm of possibilities.

Judge Scanlan allowed the old bonds of those fined to stand, but demanded new bonds of $10,000 each for those receiving prison sentences.

PROFESSOR OUT, HE SAYS.
FOR MARCHING IN PARADE.

Former Iowa College Instructor
Sues as Result of Preparedness
Pageant Aftermath.

Des Moines, Ia., July 13.—[Special.]—The board of trustees of Highland Park college today was sued by Prof. G. W. Barr, assistant to President Magill, in the District court. He alleges breach of contract.

Prof. Barr says he was in the employ of the college as a member of the faculty at a salary of $3,000 per year.

Barr asserts that "while exercising his rights and privileges as a citizen of the country and without violating any rule or tradition of the college, or any provision of the contract he had with the school," he participated in the preparedness parade on June 3 and was later discharged.

He declares James R. Martin, a member of the board of trustees of the school, and S. W. Dorsey, secretary, opposed the parade and this was the motive for discharging him.

MRS. SHURTZ WINS DIVORCE.
Mrs. Lulu Tanner Shurtz, daughter of the late John R. Tanner, one-time governor of Illinois, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Heard, from Dr. Stuart W. Shurtz. Mrs. Shurtz made an unopposed effort to secure a divorce from Shurtz in 1912.

She charged her husband with desertion.

The marital difficulties of the Shurtzes have been aired both in the Cook county courts and those of Champagne, Ill. On April 4 of this year Dr. Shurtz sued his wife for divorce, charging desertion. He was refused a decree because his wife would not admit to desertion.

Mrs. Shurtz lives at 1450 East Sixty-sixth place.

CHICAGO FASHIONS SEEN AT REST

Katherine Boner, Dorothy Bruce, Geneva Mitchell, Dorothy Dexter and Harriet Jacobs

Judging from the first rehearsal yesterday of the Chicago Style show, which is to be held at the Bismarck garden five days, beginning Aug. 7, a distance effort is going to be made to display style and not the girl, according to Carlos Sebastian, the producer.

Enticing models garbed in daring bathing suits will be exhibited arising out of a fountain built for this particular stunt.

Tall brunet and angular blond models attired in the smartest and newest fall styles will promenade on the pavilion before merchants who will be visiting Chicago to see the fall fashions.

The members of the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' association, under whose auspices this show is to be given, maintain Chicago is the "woman's apparel center" of the country.

HIS VERSION OF 'BEACH BATTLE'

Williamson Declares Wife
Deceived Him to Meet Rival.

The participants in the "battle on the beach" at Fifty-first street—the angry husband, a wife, and the other man—were all recovering their dispositions and equanimity yesterday. They were misquoting on the sand, although an expectant crowd, including Policewoman Georgia Davidson and the beach "cops," watched for their appearance there all day.

Charles A. Williamson, the husband who gave his wife's companion a punch, went for a long stroll in Lincoln park with his little son. Mrs. Jane Williamson, the wife, was in seclusion—not even her step-sister could find her. Once during the day she called on the telephone, begging that she might be permitted to speak to her little son, Robert, at the home of Mrs. Robert Williamson, her mother-in-law, at 2600 North Spaulding avenue.

"Other Man" in Drydock.
The "other man" who was punched and whose name Williamson gives as Carl Franz or Strang, was absent from his downtown office, as the result, it is reported, of a discolored cheek and broken glasses.

It was in February that Mr. Williamson discovered his wife's 19 year old "soul mate," Ray Black, and entered the courts. A number of impassioned letters were read to Judge McDonald from Jane that were not written to her husband. The result was that she left the courtroom minus alimony and her small son, Robert, a child of 2 years, who has won medals for his perfection in baby contests.

Their Home Dismantled.
The home at 1355 Emerald avenue was abandoned and Mr. Williamson and Robert went to live with his mother in Spaulding avenue. The estranged wife took a room at 1410 Forty-first street and worked spasmodically at a telephone switchboard.

She kept in communication with her husband when she was short of funds and begged to see the baby, now and then.

"After the year is up and we are divorced," she told her husband, he says, "I'll marry you again. But now I want my year to dance and be happy. But at the end of the year I want you."

She would dine with him in a hotel after her plea, it is said.

"I regret to say I love her still," went on Mr. Williamson. "I think of my beautiful little child and want him to have a mother. I have tried to keep her from going down for his sake, and I wish him never to be ashamed of his mother."

"For his sake I gave her money because she had none and let her see him—because she is his mother, although the court made no provision for her visits. Only last Thursday she dined with me and the boy here in my mother's home."

"She was to meet me at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to go with me and look at some photographs of the baby. She called over the telephone, saying she had a fearful headache and would go straight home."

Gets Beach Tip.
A stenographer told me that Carl Franz or Strang—I really don't know his name, as I have seen him but twice—was missing from his office. She said that he was going to the beach at Fifty-first street for the afternoon. I had a hunch that my wife would be there, too. So I took the baby's photographs, the new ones, and followed.

"I saw the two out on a float, arm in arm, and saw red. I struck the man and my wife slapped me face twice, calling, 'Now, Charles! Charles!' There was a commotion. When I showed her the baby's picture—the little son she is neglecting—she pretended to faint."

Fall Fatal to War Veteran.
Kewanee, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Daniel Bohan, civil war veteran, 96 years old, died from a fall off his porch here.

FANS NOW DRONE WITH IMPUNITY

Sleepless Tenant Who Objected to Buzzery Is Told to Move.

The orgy of fanning at 519 Aldine avenue reached a climax of unending joy last night. But it did not bother Roscoe B. Higbee, who a few days ago called upon the police and "vox pop" to join the fan of J. A. Coffin, the man upstairs, from humming and buzzing him out of a peaceful night's sleep. Mr. Higbee spent a good part of last night packing up the furniture. He was asked to leave in five days by Isador Springer, whose wife owns the building.

According to Mr. Higbee, it seems that the landlord is not constitutionally averse to the song of the electric fan. He sent up some more fans to Mr. Coffin after filling out the legal papers leading to the exit of Mr. Higbee to a fanless flat. So thoroughly happy over the spirit of the universe was Mr. Coffin that he changed the name plate on his mail box from the simple "J. A. Coffin" to the more sumptuous "J. Augustus Coffin."

"Mr. Springer called on me," said Mr. Higbee. "and served me with the first papers in an eviction suit. It was because of Mr. Coffin's letter complaining that I had appealed to the police for protection against the Coffin fans. I had threatened to withhold this month's rent unless the matter was settled satisfactorily."

"I told Mr. Springer that if I paid him any rent at this time I would be simply accepting the disgusting conditions he has allowed me to live under since these electric fans began their bombardment. I told him, too, that he could not expect me to surrender any advantage I have by refusing to do as he demands."

"What surprised me was that Mr. Springer said it was he who sent the new electric fans up to join Mr. Coffin's flock. Believe me, it was some night for fan music last night. If it is as bad tonight, I may invite you up to hear it."

It being generally understood that there are two sides to a flat dwellers' quarrel, Mr. Coffin was called on the telephone about 10 o'clock. He had gone to bed and refused to come to the telephone.

"We have nothing to say on the matter," said Mrs. Coffin, and the telephone banged worse than an electric fan. The sound of fans could not be heard over the telephone. There was nothing more than the usual buzz of the telephonic mechanism.

SOCIETY WOMEN SEE THEIR CADDY HIT BY LIGHTNING

Storm Causes Heavy Damage to Wires and Brings Big Delays to Railroads.

New York, July 13.—More than a score of society women, including Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn, formerly Edna May, the actress, narrowly escaped death from lightning on the grounds of a golf club at Great Neck, Long Island, today, when Felix Jacobus, a caddy, was struck and killed within a few feet of them. As the body of the caddy was carried from the field all the women in the party fell on their knees and prayed.

The Great Neck tragedy occurred while Mrs. Lewisohn and Mrs. Charles H. Goddard, wife of the president of the golf club, were engaged in an exciting match. They were putting to the last hole when Jacobus, holding the metal flag, was hit and fell dead in front of them.

Three other persons were killed by lightning, much property damage was caused, and electric train service was badly crippled by the violent storm, accompanied by a sixty mile gale from the west, which swept this city and vicinity. The temperature dropped seventeen degrees in fifteen minutes, bringing relief to thousands of persons who had been sweating in intense heat for forty-eight hours.

Thousands of commuters and others, it was announced tonight, were marooned on trains along the line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as far as Bridgeport, Conn.

Other Requests Under Will.
Mrs. Kenly's daughter, Rebecca McDoel Hickman, is to receive the interest on $200,000 and will be given $50,000 when she reaches the age of 25 years. Annette McDoel and Joseph F. McDoel, sister and brother of Mr. McDoel, are left annuitants of $1,500.

WIDOW TO FIGHT WILL OF M'DOEL

Appeals from Probate of Testament That Leaves
Her but $10,000.

ANTE-NUPTIAL PACT HIT

Mrs. Katherine R. McDoel appealed yesterday to the Circuit court in her attempt to break the will of her husband, William Henry McDoel, who cut her off with only $10,000. The will was admitted to probate by Judge Henry Horner in the Probate court. Mrs. McDoel was represented by Attorney Charles R. Cutting.

Mr. McDoel was former vice president of the Monon railroad and a director of the First National bank. He died suddenly April 23, leaving an estate of $800,000, most of which was in personal property.

Mr. McDoel was former vice president of the Monon railroad and a director of the First National bank. He died suddenly April 23, leaving an estate of $800,000, most of which was in personal property.

Ante-Nuptial Contract Involved.
According to the will, Mrs. McDoel signed an ante-nuptial agreement six months before her marriage in 1908, by which she waived her dower rights. At that time, according to Attorney H. M. Hagan, representing the other heirs, she was wealthier than Mr. McDoel. She was the widow of a Freeport lawyer who, it was claimed, left her money.

Mrs. William K. Kenly of 1311 Astor street, daughter of Mr. McDoel by another marriage, was left $100,000 outright, as well as the interest during her life on $250,000.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."—Stephen Decatur.

CHICAGO: SUMMER RESORT.

Why not gather together the strands of our scattered effort to advertise the merits of Chicago as a summer resort? Here and there organized interests are reminding the world of them. The steamboat companies worked out a campaign last year. Several of the railroads are making some showing. The press is helping sporadically. What is wanted is a real city propaganda, organized and well supplied.

Why isn't this a service the Association of Commerce could take up? It represents no special interest. It stands for Chicago. It is in touch with the whole middle region of the country. It could bring together all the efforts now being made and stimulate and direct a broad campaign.

It hardly needs the inspiration of this splendid summer, with its crowds at the wonderful new municipal pier, the parks and bathing beaches and yacht harbors, in the summer gardens and theaters, its blessing of cool airs and the ever present beauty of the great lake, to remind us what resources we have of health and pleasure. The facts are winning steadily for Chicago. But why not speed up the process of education, not only for the benefit of the people throughout the south and west, but for our own sake?

A campaign of education to disclose the resources of Chicago and its environment would not be merely material in its benefits. It would tone up the spirit of the community itself, developing our own enjoyment of what we have, stimulating a wholesome pride in the city.

This is worth a great propaganda, and the Association of Commerce will perform a welcome public service if it takes the lead in its organization.

AWAKE AT LAST.

The power of the demand for adequate defense is strikingly manifested in the changes made by the senate naval committee in the naval bill. A program of expenditure of half a billion on the navy two years ago would have been scouted in congress as insane, although the discerning and informed knew of our needs then and long before, and urged despairingly some attention to them.

But election is coming, and its shadow lies across the congressional mind and meets Mr. Wilson on his threshold. The little army and navy men are weakening, even in the house, but the senate is wide awake at last.

The folly of our naval deterioration has come home and the sense of swiftly approaching accounting is growing poignant. After two years of stubborn postponement the issue is here, and cannot be dodged.

The naval construction proposed by the senate committee should be authorized. It is none too great. Senator Swann's eloquent appeal for a second rank navy will find an echo throughout the country.

"We might as well realize," he said, "that all our rights, the preservation of our institutions, the possession of our wealth, the enjoyment of our foreign commerce, the continuation of the Monroe doctrine, and the ownership of the Panama canal are dependent upon our own strong arm, manifested and exercised through our navy."

It is a late awakening. But better late than never.

THE PRIVATE IN UNIFORM.

We are reluctant to believe that the private of Battery C who were told to get off the dance floor of the Travis club in San Antonio were chased because they were private. It is to be suspected, rather, that currency was given to a rumor that some of them, in civil life, were in trade. In parts of the south this would taint the whole outfit, and the fact that the artillerymen were regarded in these parts as solvent and socially presentable would not help any.

Aristocracy is a jealously guarded sanctuary in parts of the south and a dollar has to have a pedigree. If Battery C had as much money per capita as legend ascribes to it, that section of our citizenry in arms would be sincerely glad, but these young heroes are parlor broke whether they are millionaires or not.

We trust that they were told to get off the dance floor because some aristocratic nostril caught the scent of a tradesman; not because they were in uniform, but because they were in trade. We hope so, because of the two bits of medievalism the social snobishness which hits the private soldier is the more damaging.

Some day a republic is going to laugh itself to death. That day will come when it opens its eyes to the grotesqueries it coddles and encourages. In the instance of the soldier a free nation calls upon its men to put on uniform and submit themselves to extraordinary hazards for the benefit of the state.

The thing that its citizens must be willing to assume is the disagreeable task of the private soldier. The moment a man, understanding his duty and trying to do it, puts on the uniform of a private soldier he becomes socially inferior not only to the men who have an officer's insignia sewed on them but to the civilians for whom the private is working.

Regardless of his character, intelligence, personality, or devotion, he becomes a social pariah. Limitations of his conduct which have military significance he understands and accepts. He takes orders and obeys them without question. He surrenders his opinions and his personal initiative. He does not complain that his officers have life made considerably easier for them than it is made for him. They may have softer beds, better food, better equipment. Whenever military necessity requires the surrender even of social rights, the right-minded volunteer private does not object, but when he finds that his uniform is a veto of many privileges not touching military duty, he resents it as he ought.

Americans will never tolerate the establishment of a social caste in this fashion, and the belief that an army creates an aristocracy and a serfdom interferes with the operation of common sense in military matters.

Probably the best guide we have is the French. That democracy has a real army and it has a democratic army. Its efficiency is attained without confusing military discipline and social humiliation.

The French know that a soldier can be subordinate without being a pariah. The Travis club incident is a comic triviality, but we cannot ignore the fact that the private soldier is made to feel that he has lost a good many of his social privileges, if not some of his respectability, by getting into uniform. So far as the loss is demanded by discipline is necessary, but where it is a concession to the social dignity of the officer and to the civilian catering to the officer, it is an outrage against intelligence.

THE SUPERSALESMAN.

Mr. Wilson's appeal at the world's salesmanship conclave in the Ford works seems to have met with great enthusiasm—and no wonder. When the president asked what the assembled salesmen wanted most after the present struggle in Europe is over, they responded in one mighty voice, "Peace," which was obviously the right order.

However, for world's salesmen a substantial side order of "trade" would be acceptable, and it is on this point that there must have been a few in his audience who would have liked even in the midst of the encompassing enthusiasm to have asked the distinguished speaker for a little more light.

For example, whether the world's salesmanship convention is conscious of it or not, peace is not to be had by shouting for it any more than pie, and neither is trade. We in the United States have shown a tendency to think so, and Mr. Wilson's administration has shared that tendency conspicuously. But it takes more than talk, especially the sort of talk we have had so much of lately, to achieve peace or seize trade. One of the requisites of trade is mutually.

The chief reason why England has been able to sell in some of the markets our world salesmen are after is that she has been ready to lend the means for the sale to the purchaser. She has invested her capital in countries which had to have it before they could be markets for her goods, and she has not called that investment exploitation or refused to support and protect rights of her subjects involved in the process on the theory that they were malefactors. British foreign investment and trade both are backed self-respectingly and unflinchingly by British power.

It is pleasant to shout for peace and to cheer moral sentiments of an unimpeachable quality. But it will not bring peace or trade or serve as a profitable substitute for thought. When Mr. Wilson invited our world salesmen to consider themselves as missionaries "meant to carry liberty and justice and the principles of humanity wherever you go," he seems to have pleased the vanity of his ardent hearers, but if they take his advice they will not be world salesmen but world nuisances, and the doors of the benighted peoples they address will be slammed in their possibly inspired but certainly obnoxious faces.

Mr. Wilson's theory of expanding our trade seems to be to call the pioneers of our trade malefactors, refuse their rights support and their persons protection, and then send forth an army of supersalesmen inspired to convert the error darkened world to the principles of liberty, justice, and humanity while doing a little profitable business on the side. This proposal may have aroused great enthusiasm in the world salesmanship convention at the Ford works. It will not be so received in Mexico, Argentina, China, or Peru.

PRIDE OF NUMBERS.

It is not remarkable that Chicago watches census figures with the idea that increases in population mean progress. The old Chicagoan felt that he was a wonder child because the city in which he lived was a miracle city of quick growth. It was the frontier spirit which found in the mere addition of numbers the satisfaction of local pride.

Such addition was symptomatic not only of vigor and strength but, a more promising indication, of substantial reasons for such vigor and strength. There was a perceived cause which governed ambitious people. That cause proved the solidity of the foundations of the city.

The imporing people brought and created wealth. They made values and prosperity. Now, with position and institutions established, Chicago still takes an acute interest in the additions to population. Every city does, but Chicago probably with more intensity of feeling.

The thought occurs that it is about time to find less of interest in increase and more in the handling of such population as the city has. Five thousand better tenements would add more to the true value of the city than a 200,000 increase in population. The city needs more playgrounds rather than more people. Its proper civic ambition is to find quality rather than quantity in life. China has ceased to exult in numbers. Life is not wonderful as it is prolific but as it is well ordered and thoughtful.

FACT FOLLOWS FICTION.

Authors often base fiction upon fact, but it is not so frequent that fact follows fiction. Those who read the story of the downfall of the New Orleans clergyman in the Chicago slums must have been struck with certain resemblances in it to George W. Cable's delightful tale "Posse Jones."

In both the fact and the fiction the clergyman came from a distant section, innocent and on a good errand. Both were led into temptation, sinned, and lost their money. Both by a lucky accident recovered it and went home to repent.

We tell this because some young writer, reading of the episode in the Chicago press and who does not know what happened to Parson Jones of "Smyrney" church, East Florida, Jules St. Ange, and Colossus, may turn it into fiction, as well he might, and then be charged with lifting Cable's idea.

Editorial of the Day.

WE REAP WHERE MR. WILSON SOWED.

(From the New York Sun.)

The Mexican people, in behalf of whose rights to slaughter and pillage the president of the United States spoke eloquently a few months ago, hold us in contempt. They believe that they are our superiors in courage, in devotion to country, in all the virtues that appeal to men not too proud to fight. In this lies the explanation of the humiliating occurrences that have compelled the war department to put our entire mobile army in Mexico or on the border, to strip our coast defenses of men, and finally to mobilize the national guards of all the states.

The source of this Mexican misconception is obvious. It is universally recognized. The incomprehensible conduct of Woodrow Wilson has deceived the population of Mexico and made possible the perpetuation of the error that now threatens to involve us in a war from which the people of the United States shrink in disgust, a war that intelligent statescraft in the past would have made impossible.

An informed and firm policy, rooted in good sense, would have kept our arms out of Mexico. That policy Woodrow Wilson because of his infirmities has been incapable of providing, and this morning he gives notice to the United States that his blunders have brought a situation requiring their correction in blood.

SHE gave her all: upon her peace what time The crew of hell was loosed, an obscene host That raved and raved, until men almost Lost faith in God, so hideous was the crime. To heights undreamed-of did the horror climb. As the Hun hacked his way from hill to coast; She bowed her head, and smiling met the boast Of Attila with fortitude sublime.

Though now her strength be broken by the blow Of wanton rage, and blood the beauty mires Of her fair face behind its prison bars, Still has her agony these fruits to show: Her honour stainless as the driven snow, Her glory everlasting as the stars.

Sir: The preacher from the south who was nicked for his roll in a Van Buren street bar evidently believed with St. Paul, "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

DOUBLE BARREL.

THAT preacher, by the way, related a tale the first paragraph of which was one of the best story-beginnings we ever read:

"Being a stranger and in search of food, I went into a café at 3 West Van Buren street. I asked for an appetizer. The bartender gave me a glass of some whitish liquid which tasted like bitter—'I meant bitter when I asked for an appetizer. Then I asked the bartender, Thomas Dowling, if he knew a respectable woman I could take to dinner.'"

IN the suburbs of Chicago there are more mosquitoes to the square yard than in the north woods. Why? What is there in the glorious climate of this section so encouraging to the pest? In the netting we observed a night watchman wearing a head net. Toward morning, he said, he had to protect his hands with buckskin gloves.

Sir: A thousand apologies for hurrying your standing with the contrite (Hibernian) even by inference. What I attempted to show by the clipping from the London Spectator was that there can be no sympathy between Ireland and Germany, because there does not exist any basis for mutual understanding, and the translation from the Conversation-Lexicon is simply an indication of the Impressions Germans have of the Irish. As to the statements, some of them may be true, but they are so general in their application, why particularize with the Irish? Why not include Frenchmen, Spanish, Fuli Islanders, revivalists, and professional politicians?

MOSQUITOES AND MALARIA.
OF the benefit of those who must travel in mosquito infested places, particularly on shipboard, we quote an observation made by Dr. Given on the British ship Cadmus. In the summer of 1911 and 1912 the Cadmus was in Chinese waters. (1) In the summer of 1912 the complaints about the ravages of mosquitoes were "practically nil as compared with the previous summer." (2) "We had not a single case of malaria during our ten months' sojourn up the Yangtze."

Oil of citronella was procured by a wholesaler. A half gram was poured in the palm of the hand and then anointed on the feet, ankles, hands, and face. This would secure immunity for four hours at least, and sometimes for the entire night. Perhaps a good method of using citronella would be that suggested by Gen. Holmes. Pieces of gauze dipped in oil are bound around the wrist, ankles, and forehead.

By the free use of citronella. Given found that the men could get on very well without mosquito nets. Oil of citronella sold retail at 12 cents an ounce. It would be cheaper when bought wholesale. Ten pounds would cost the entire ship's crew throughout the summer.

JOSS OFFICERS or PUNK—in the ward rooms and stokers' cabins smoldering joss sticks were effective. On the mess decks and in other open locations they did not do much good. A few sticks smoldering on the table would keep the room clear during the meal.

Mosquito Netting—Most of the men on shipboard slept in hammocks. It is not an easy matter to cover a hammock effectively with mosquito netting. In the first place, it is difficult to keep the netting in position; in the second, if the netting touches the body the mosquitoes can feed through it. In contrast with the average commercial mosquito netting the average mosquito net has a mesh fine enough to stop mosquitoes. On the other hand, netting very often has rents and tears large enough to let mosquitoes through.

Given arranged a mosquito netting over a hammock so that the whole had the shape of a torpedo. When this was drawn tightly at the head and foot of the hammock it was mosquito proof and the netting was easy to draw over the hammock. A mosquito netting over a hammock is troublesome to put in position, tears easily, and stops the view of the air on a hot night. A piece of netting 6x9 feet is required.

To keep mosquitoes out of the ship by placing fine screens over the portholes, scuttles and ventilators were worse than useless. The gauze kept out some air, the mosquitoes got into the cabin anyhow, and having gotten in, could not get out and remained to torment. All breeding places on shipboard were cleaned.

NASMUCH as Sir Douglas Haig, the generalissimo of the immense British army in France—far and away the largest British force ever assembled under one command, numbering as it does some two million men—is very much in the limelight just at present, in connection with his long awaited advance, it may be of interest to call attention to the fact that when he attempted to join the army, after taking his degree at Oxford, he was turned down by the medical examination as color blind.

Possessed of means, he invoked the assistance of the leading oculists in England, in France, and in Germany, without avail, and was equally unsuccessful in all his endeavors to secure a reconformation of his case, or an exception in his favor by the military authorities.

At last he had the good fortune to attract the attention and to arouse the good will and sympathy of the Duke of Cambridge, then at the head of the army, and he gave him a special order admitting him to Sandhurst, with the promise of a commission in the cavalry after he had been through the military training there. Indeed, had it not been for the duke, Sir Douglas Haig would have been kept out of the army.

Oxford men may like to know that his college at the university was Brasenose, and that he was more conspicuous there for his muscle and for his prowess in cricket, football, and athletic sports generally.

Warm friendship has bound him to Field Marshal Lord French ever since, on the day of Cronje's surrender at Paardeberg, during the Boer war sixteen years ago, he was almost drowned while crossing the Modder river in the midst of the stream, and rendered half unconscious by a blow from his horse's hoofs, he was being swept away, and would undoubtedly have been drowned had not the field marshal, who was then Maj. Gen. John French, thrown himself into the water and struck out towards Haig, and after a long and apparently hopeless struggle, in which he nearly lost his own life, brought him safely to land.

The presence in Baltimore harbor of the submarine ocean liner 140 years ago, that is to say, in 1776, a sergeant of the name of Ezra Lee, of the American army, under Gen. Parsons, endeavored to blow up the English man of war Eagle, lying at anchor near the north end of Staten Island, by means of a submarine boat invented and constructed by David Bushnell of Saybrook, Conn. This boat was of wood, well hooped with iron bands, and almost globular in form, its depth, however, being greater than its width. In the top was a circular manhole of metal. Seven hundred pounds of lead were attached to the bottom to keep it upright. Rising was effected by two force pumps for driving out the water, which was accomplished by means of a screw on the deck. There was room for only one operator in the boat, which was just about deep enough for him to stand upright. Steering was done by a little finlike rudder on one side, guided by a compass having two small pieces of phosphorescent deadwood crosswise on its point, and a single piece at the opposite end.

As for the moving power, it consisted of two paddles, fixed screw-wise on the end of a shaft, which passed through the side of the boat opposite to the rudder. They were but twelve inches long by four inches wide, but by grinding away very energetically at the handles inside a rate of about three miles an hour could be obtained in still water.

With regard to the torpedo part of the business, it was a small wooden box, containing a quantity of gunpowder, and fitted with an ordinary clock gunlock. This was connected with a clock arrangement which could be set to go for a certain time, at the end of which the lock was released and fired the powder. David Bushnell, the inventor, did not seem to have had enough faith in his creation to trust his own life to it, so he secured the services of Sgt. Ezra Lee from the First Regiment of the Connecticut, having been so near to the British man of war as to be deemed prudent, entered the submarine vessel. With great pains and trouble, after two and a half hours' labor, he was under the stern of the Eagle, a sixty-four gun ship. He then found that the sharp cable which projected near the manhole for the purpose of holding the explosive steady against the hull of the vessel, could not be driven through the armor plate of the hull. He then made two attempts to make different parts of the vessel's bottom. But it was not getting light, and for fear of being seen he withdrew. The vessel was not hit. Before landing, Lee had to look out frequently from the top, his compass having failed, and while thus engaged he was seen from an English warship and pursued by a boat. He thereupon detached the machine, which blew up harmlessly in the East river, and got ashore safely with the boat.

A subsequent attempt was equally unsuccessful owing to the watchfulness of the English warship. That was the last heard of Bushnell's torpedoes and submarine experiments.

Among those who have been most hard hit by the death of Lord Kitchener has been Sir George Arthur, who acted as private secretary to the field marshal from the time that he assumed charge of the war department in London, and who, like Col. Fitzgerald, lived with him in St. James' palace, that is to say, in that city, and who was placed at the disposal of Lord Kitchener by King George.

Sir George, who is a very small and dark man, nicknamed "the Mite," by reason of his diminutive stature, formerly held a commission in the Second Life Guards—a corps of giants—with whom he took part in the Egyptian campaign of 1882, and in Lord Wolseley's Nile expedition for the relief of Gordon, in 1885. He of the South African war, and was in the Hertfordshire Imperial Yeomanry under Lord Chesham. Eldest son of the late Sir Frederick, and of Lady Elizabeth Arthur, he is related to Lord Kninnell, to Georgina Lady Dudley, and to her sisters, and was a particular favorite of Queen Mary's mother, the late Duchess of Teck, being often in attendance upon her, as unpaid equerry, until her death.

Sir George is exceedingly versatile, has contributed to Lord Northcliffe's Daily Mail, on the subject of the experience of his uncle, the late Sir Bartle Frere, in Africa, has owned a cigar shop, not far from Piccadilly, has dabbled in finance in the city, and knows everybody worth knowing in London. One of his most intimate friends is Prince Alexander of Teck, and he holds a high place in the regard to Queen Mary.

He is just the man that Kitchener needed for private secretary, for his knowledge of English society, and of its members, was unequalled, and no one possessed a wider acquaintance than himself with all its many influences, prejudices, rivalries, and feuds. So that he was able to help the field marshal quite a lot in the selection of men for appointment to commissions.

DR. FLEXNER REVIEWS ADVANCE IN KNOWLEDGE OF BABY PLAGUE

NEW YORK, July 13.—[Special.]—Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, made an address tonight before the New York academy of medicine in which he explained the present knowledge concerning infantile paralysis, which is reaping so heavy a harvest in the lives of children of the country.

"Infantile paralysis," he said, "is an infectious and communicable disease which is caused by the invasion of the central nervous organs—the spinal cord and brain—a minute, filterable micro-organism which has now been secured in cultural culture and, as such, is distinctly visible under the higher powered microscopes."

NOTIFY HUGHES ON JULY 31 IN CARNEGIE HALL

Taft and Roosevelt Will Be Invited to Attend—Will Not Accept, Prediction.

New York, July 13.—(Special.)—At the New York headquarters of Charles E. Hughes today it was announced definitely that Mr. Hughes would be notified of his nomination at Carnegie hall at 8 p. m. on July 31 and that Col. Roosevelt and President Taft would be asked to attend as guests of honor.

Every Republican and Progressive of prominence throughout the country will be invited to be present not only at the nomination, but at a reception Mr. Hughes is to hold at the Hotel Astor later in the evening.

Already Republican politicians predict that neither Col. Roosevelt nor Mr. Taft will accept. Col. Roosevelt is known to not that the nomination "is Mr. Hughes' party" and that he should not be there to take any of the cheers which rightfully belong to the Republican nominee.

Not Anxious to Meet.
Mr. Taft is of the same opinion. Besides, he is at Murray Bay, Canada, for a three months' vacation. Furthermore, there appears to exist no decided inclination on the part of either ex-president to shake hands with the other in public as yet.

The Hughes men plan for the Progressives to play as prominent a part in the nomination ceremonies as the Republicans. George W. Perkins will occupy a seat on the platform within speaking distance of W. Murray Crane, Massachusetts Republican boss.

Harding to Make Speech.
This list of "guests" was supplied by Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, who is to deliver the address of nomination. Mr. Harding, called by appointment at 11 o'clock this morning, and after a full discussion of the proposed exercises with Mr. Hughes and National Chairman William B. Warren, national committee man from Michigan, who is to be in charge of the Republican headquarters in Chicago, said a few days after the nomination, and a few days after the nomination, and a few days after the nomination.

James B. Hughes, receiver for the Illinois Heavy company, filed his first report in the Superior court yesterday. The document states that the estimated assets of the company are $250,000, which $125,000 is termed "good and doubtful." The liabilities are estimated at $250,000.

Judge John H. Clarke.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Wilson has narrowed the list of men he is considering for appointment to the Supreme court to J. H. Clarke of Cleveland, federal district judge, and Victor J. HULL CUTS LOOSE AT THE MAYOR'S BRAND OF RULE

Outlines His Plan to Warn the State of the Perils of "Thompsonitis."

Morton D. Hull fired a broadside yesterday at the Thompson-Lundin-Lowden forces in his first formal statement since he has got squared away for the state campaign. He said he will not mince words when he makes his first down state address at Duquoin next Tuesday and follows it with a speech at Carbondale that evening.

In his statement yesterday Mr. Hull said:
"A leading issue in the state is: Shall the spoils forces of the Chicago city hall, through the candidacy of Col. Lowden for governor, be permitted to inflict our state service with 'Thompsonitis'?" said Mr. Hull.

Examination of the Thompson-Lowden county slate headed by Harry B. Miller, a handy man of the Thompson administration, for the great office of state's attorney, shows that a live Chicago question is: Shall the Thompson forces be permitted to contaminate the county institutions with the same disease?

Fears for Other Institutions.
"It is also true, in all human probability, that if the Thompson forces, through Col. Lowden, get control of the state government they will attempt to inflict the same treatment that they gave Dr. Sachs and the Chicago municipal tuberculosis sanitarium upon Elgin, Kankakee, Anna, and the other great charitable institutions of the state."
"It is safe to assume that their lust for contracts and patronage, such as they displayed in reference to the tuberculosis sanitarium, will again be displayed if their domination of public affairs spreads to the county service and their influence extends to the state service."

played if their domination of public affairs spreads to the county service and their influence extends to the state service.

"Thompsonitis may be defined briefly as a ruthless lust for power combined with daily eruptions of buncombe. The people of Cook county and of the other 101 counties of Illinois must join hands to eradicate this disease from the body politic."

Logan Hay of Springfield was in conference with Mr. Hull. He brought tidings from the central section of the state that, in his judgment, the Hull candidacy is already starting a ground swell. He said Hull will carry Sangamon county over both Lowden and Smith.

Attorney General Aspirants Talk.
Walter Provine of Taylorville, Richard J. Barr of Joliet, and George Wilson of Quincy, all candidates for the nomination for attorney general, spoke at the Hamilton club yesterday. Mr. Provine denounced candidates for office who attempt to capitalize their support of moral issues. He was understood to be hitting at Wilson, the Anti-Saloon league leader in the legislature.

Nance Quits Deneen Slate.
Ald. Willis O. Nance withdrew from the Deneen-Hull slate for coroner. Walter G. Davis of the Ninth ward, a Deneen leader, was placed on the slate for this job.

The Thompson-Brundage county leaders took the vacant room on the ground floor of the National Life building, on La Salle street, for the headquarters for the county slate candidates. Deneen has his office in this building.

Chairman Galpin of the county committee named the following campaign committee: Galpin, chairman; Edwin A. Olson, Twenty-third ward; George F. Hardin, Second ward; Walter E. LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE RE-ELECTS A. B. FARWELL.

President Reviews Work of Year in Fight Against Saloons and Vice in Chicago.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Law and Order league held yesterday Arthur Burrage Farwell, who was re-elected president, reviewed the work of that organization for the last year.

He said the league deserves credit for agitation leading to the closing of the saloons on Sundays, and primary and election days. He said the cooperation of the University of Chicago had been obtained in the fight against the Edelweiss garden and the aid of the Northwestern university in the fight on the Devon avenue saloon.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. B. Farwell; Edward T. Lee, vice president; the Rev. Herbert B. Gwyn of Kenilworth, secretary; and Frank H. Tuthill, treasurer. The directors elected were Elmer J. Davis, the Rev. Duncan C. Milner, the Rev. M. P. Boynton, William F. Mulvihill, and the Rev. C. G. Kindred.

Your Chance for a Clean-Up!

Everybody Else is Making Money in these Prosperous Times—Why Not U?

Let Chicago Real Estate Begin Today to Build Your Fortune. Here and Now is the Time to Start!!

¶Everybody who believes Chicago is going backward—stand up!

¶Anybody who ever heard of more prosperous times than we are having—stand up!

¶And all who believe that the present prosperity isn't going to last as long as the war lasts, and even much longer—please arise!

¶Now, you who are standing—please get out! Don't read any further; there's no use of talking to you. You're clams; you're hopeless.

¶But—you men and women who are still seated—listen!!

¶You know—because you've got the good sense to know—that times were never so prosperous; that every one who wants to work has plenty of work at good pay; that Chicago is not going backward; and that she therefore can't stand still, but must go forward; and that, in fact, she is destined to be one of the two greatest cities in the world; that prosperity in this country is going to last; and that the man or woman who is not making money—AND BIG MONEY—right now, never will!

¶Get that last truth firmly fixed in mind—

¶The man or woman who is not making money RIGHT NOW, never will!

¶If you are not making money, just make up your mind it's your own fault. If you want to make some, quit whining and let us tell you how.

¶Invest in the right kind of Chicago real estate—

property that is located in the path of this growing city's growth—in a high class district—and, above all, get a bargain!

¶We are very fortunate in now being able to offer you one of the biggest snaps with which we have ever had experience. We are not only able to offer you this property at half its true value, but we can confidently state that it offers a possibility of possibly trebling and quadrupling your money within a reasonably short time. We say this because all North Shore property is doubling in value every few years. And our property, RAVINIA HIGHLANDS, is in the very choicest and most exclusive of North Shore districts—lying between Ravinia and Highland Park.

¶Here property is being held as high as $125 per foot. Not a single piece of raw land surrounding us can be bought for less than $2,500 an acre, wholesale—and much of it is held for twice this figure.

¶We are selling 40x130 foot residence lots in RAVINIA HIGHLANDS for as low as $349 and on the very easiest terms. Seven of these lots will give you more than an acre and will cost you exactly $2,443—lots in a proven and fast selling subdivision at less than a farm like ourselves can buy surrounding property (raw land) at wholesale and for cash.

¶As an investment for you—one combining brilliant speculative possibilities with 200 per cent absolute security on your money—you must admit that this is a stunner. The like of this opportunity you never saw.

BARTLETT'S RAVINIA HIGHLANDS

IN THE ARISTOCRATIC HIGHLAND PARK-RAVINIA DISTRICT

¶Think of securing a full sized 40x130 foot lot in this wonderful section for as low as $349. Not one or two, but scores of them. We will gladly sell you six or seven of these $349 lots (adjoining)—or twelve if you can handle them.

¶And all on such easy terms—giving you up to four years to pay, and charging you no interest for the first two years.

¶Think of such prices for the choicest of choice North Shore property, with the best of transportation (furnished by the Northwestern Railway with its 41 local trains daily and 12-cent commutation fare); also the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric—both roads having stations at the entrance to our property. Two splendid automobile roads.

40x130 ft. Lots as low as $349

Acres (Seven Lots of 280 Foot) $2443

Terms: 10% Down—Balance Three to Four Years
NO INTEREST FOR FIRST TWO YEARS

¶All we ask of you is to come out and see for yourself—make a thorough investigation of conditions—and take our word for the rest. Remember, we are probably better experienced in real estate values than any other firm in town; and our 16 years of success in developing subdivisions enables us to pretty accurately forecast the future of different properties—particularly the properties into which we place our own money.

¶We say to you: "Buy Ravinia Highlands!" We say: "Plunge! Buy all you can of it! Load up on it—all you can possibly carry—every foot of it will make you money."

¶See this unparalleled value. Arrange to go out Sunday and see if it is not even better and more desirable than we say. Go at our expense—and your family. Three hours will nicely cover the trip and give you plenty of time on the grounds.

See This Property—Sunday—At Our Expense

¶Come out Sunday. See RAVINIA HIGHLANDS and the surrounding country in all its matchless summer beauty and grandeur, with the nearby forests, the majestic ravines, the wonderful drives, parks, boulevards and beaches for which this section is famous the country over. See beautiful Skokie Valley, which our property overlooks. Join us, and enjoy a visit of inspection at our expense. Read in the coupon below and we will arrange free transportation and entertainment for you and your party. Also get free illustrated circular and plat. Motorists will find the drive to Ravinia Highlands ideal. Go out Green Bay Road direct to our office, or take Sheridan Road and turn west at Roger Williams Avenue. Or take the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric at Evanston or at any North Side station.

Extravagant New York

Burns Mantle, that delightful, gossipy writer, has prepared a series of four articles on the subject of New York's extravagance. In the course of his first article Mr. Mantle observes:

"New York literally eats its way through a mountain of food every day of the year, much of it expensive. But, according to the gentlemen who serve it, people know much more about food now than they used to. They know, too, what its abuse does to them, and thousands upon thousands are 'eating and growing thin.'"

"The spender is learning that he can play fair with both pocketbook and stomach and have quite as much fun; that it is not alone possible to drink and be sober, but that to celebrate and be sane is also among the possibilities."

These articles are among the most entertaining Mr. Mantle ever wrote. They are profusely illustrated. The first of the series appears in the color section of

DILLON TRIMMED BY BAT LEVINSKY IN 10 ROUND BOUT

New Yorker Outpoints Hoosier in Seven Sessions—Length of Go Is Reduced.

"TRIBUNE" DECISIONS

Decisions of "Tribune" fight representatives are:
At Baltimore—Batting Levinsky beat Jack Dillon (10).
At New York—Knockout Sullivan beat Batting Levinsky (10).
At Aurora—Sunburst Dolan beat Clint Flynn (10).

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—(Special.)—Batting Levinsky of New York put a crimp in the championship aspirations of Jack Dillon of Indianapolis when they fought ten rounds this afternoon at Oriole park. Levinsky outpointed the Hoosier in all but the first and sixth rounds, and the fourth, which was even. At the end of the last round Levinsky had Dillon on the ropes, rocking his head with rights and lefts.

At the beginning of the fight Dillon forced the issue and tried time and again to land a right on Levinsky's jaw that would have ended the fight. Levinsky outboxed Dillon at every part of the game, straightening him up with sharp left jabs to the face and hard rights to the body.

Dillon's Right Eye Out.

In the second round Levinsky opened a cut over Dillon's right eye and kept it bleeding throughout the bout. He also brought distress to Dillon with a hard smash to the wind, and a hard blow to the mouth evidently loosened some of Jack's teeth.

The men were matched to box fifteen rounds to a decision for the light heavyweight championship, but this was cut to ten rounds and no decision when it was disclosed that Dillon had been guaranteed the purse, $5,000 to Dillon and $2,500 to Levinsky, had disappeared. The promoter ducked when he found the crowd was small. Dillon and Levinsky, in order not to disappoint about 1,500 waiting fans, agreed to box ten rounds for the gate receipts.

Chicago Boxer Outpointed.

In the preliminaries Gus Lewis of Philadelphia outpointed Joe Burger of Chicago in six rounds, and Joe Chasney of this city knocked out Young Mitchell of Philadelphia in the first round.

WOLGAST PURCHASES HALF COLLINS' FULTON INTEREST.

If Fred Fulton insists on going through with his plan of breaking company with his manager, Mike Collins, he's going to have a real fight on his hands. This was made very plain yesterday when Collins sold half of his interest in his contract with Fulton to none other than Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion.

With Wolgast and his huge pile of worldly goods to back him against Fulton, it looks as if the Rochester giant might have to back up or find some other way of losing Collins than by simply saying he is "through" with him. Now Collins has Wolgast to get rid of as well as Collins, and one who thinks it's easy to get away from the Michigan Bearcat has another guess.

These were the developments yesterday in the controversy between Fulton and Collins, which the former started by declaring that he had tied the can to Collins and would have it managed by Frank Force of Minneapolis.

Wolgast ran into Collins yesterday and the pair visited a number of lawyers, to whom Collins presented his contract with Fulton for inspection. All the legal talent was unanimous in the opinion that the contract is binding, and when the Cadillac lightweight learned this he immediately formed a partnership with Collins, buying half of his interest. How much Wolgast paid for his share could not be learned last night.

SUNBURST DOLAN BEATS FLYNN IN AURORA BOUT.

Aurora, Ill., July 13.—Sunburst Dolan made his first fight since breaking his hand at Aurora last night and scored a victory, his opponent being Clint Flynn of Chicago. They went ten fast rounds before the Hungarian Athletic club, and Dolan led all the way. About 500 saw the bout.

FIELD OF SIX HORSES PROBABLE FOR DERBY

Lack of Numbers Offset by Glass and Standing of Their Owners.

KEENE TO SEE RACE.

BY E. S. MERRILL.
Six horses, two of them from the same stable, will probably make up the field in tomorrow's renewal of the American Derby at Hawthorne. If the field suffers in size by comparison with others that were wont to supply Chicago's most spectacular annual event in former years, it appears to excel in some other particulars. For example, three of the starters already have won victories elsewhere to their credit. It is unusual for a Chicago race to attract the colors of three such notable owners at a distance as Foxhall P. Keene, John Sanford, and R. J. Mackenzie.

There seems considerable doubt whether Dick Williams will be a starter, but to offset this there is the possibility that Angelo, another Derby winner, may arrive today from the Pacific coast and go in the post.

Keene Entry Hurried Here.
Churchill, the Keene entry, is widely expected in the rich stake events of the eastern tracks, so that his hurried shipment to Chicago—the colt arrived only yesterday—is not what would be regarded as a good business risk, for ordinarily such a trip operates against the colt's best condition. The fact of his coming may be attributed solely to the desire of the noted eastern sportsman to help the revival of racing in Chicago.

But the representation in the race of some of the best bloodstock in the country, the Winchester railroad magnate and son of Mr. William Mackenzie, president of the Great Northern railroad, to help the revival of the central west, gives to the race the element which is so much desired—that of attracting attention to the event as one which will bring credit to the city.

Both Mr. Keene and Mr. Mackenzie are to be here to see their colts perform, and there is a possibility that Mr. Sanford also will come on.

Of the other Derby colt owners, Mr. Schorr is well known to Chicago racing followers as the possessor of fine strings of thoroughbreds, and has won many years. J. S. Ward is a Lexington trainer who also has won with success for several years. His partner, Mr. Weber, is a St. Louisian who has recently been interested.

Jockeys Up to Standard.
The Derby renewal is not lacking, therefore, in the element of class, either in the horses or the more important element of owners. Nor will the half dozen jockeys, except Murphy, Fairbrother, Byrne, Garner, and Andrews are all successful.

The Hawthorne race track will be in condition for a record performance under these conditions, and an unusually heavy turnout is expected.

MISS MILDRED SMITH DEFEATS MRS. JONES IN BEVERLY TOWN

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Following her success last week in the Skokie tournament, when she defeated Mrs. Melvin Jones of Glen Oak, 2 and 1, Miss Mildred Smith of Evanston took the first flight honors of the Beverly tournament yesterday, getting a margin of 3 and 2 over Mrs. Jones.

Although this was her first season in local tournament play, Miss Smith has demonstrated conclusively she is a player of championship caliber, one of the best west ever has produced. She has an ideal temperament, and paradoxical as it may seem, appeared as cool as the proverbial cucumber, although there was an overflow of humidity in the atmosphere.

Even for Nine Holes.
From a military point, she did the attacking. Mrs. Jones providing the counter attack. For nine holes the Glen Oak player was able to make an even fight, but it was evident Miss Smith was playing the better game. Only some excellent putting kept Mrs. Jones in the running.

With the course in fast shape, Miss Smith got away from long drives. At the long third hole, 600 yards, she was even with the flag in three shots. Mrs. Jones drove well at times, but missed several shots from the tee and others through the green. Cards:

Miss Smith—Out, 5 4 6 5 4 4 4 5 4—52.
Mrs. Jones—Out, 5 4 6 5 4 5 5 4—53.
Miss Smith—In, 4 6 2 4 5 5 6—38.
Mrs. Jones—In, 4 6 2 4 5 5 6—38.

Winners in Other Flights.
Mrs. G. S. Haskell of Beverly won the second flight final from Mrs. E. L. Walcott of Westmoreland after a hard battle, taking the match on the home green.

FOUR GOLF PLAYERS TIE FOR LOW SCORE IN EXMOOR TOURNEY

BY KEENE GARDINER.

John D. Cady of the Rock Island Arsenal golf club shared low score honors in the qualifying round of the Exmoor invitation tournament with three local players. J. T. Lang of Westmoreland, G. D. Jones of Hinsdale, and N. Landon Hoyt of Skokie tied with Cady at 79.

A field of 145 members and guests took part in the initial round, and a contest was allowed to enter either his morning or afternoon round as his qualifying score the leaders were not determined until the end of the day.

Six flights of sixteen each qualified and will compete in the first match round this morning and the second round in the afternoon. The visitors found the remedial course quite to their liking.

Leading Scores.
J. D. Cady, Rock Island, 79.
J. T. Lang, Westmoreland, 79.

THE CASTING ROD.

AMBO is the one material that combines nearly all requisites of a good rod, such as lightness, strength, resiliency, or casting force and balance. Tournament casters are unanimously in favor of bamboo, but fishermen are not agreed on its all around superiority. That it makes the best rod from the standpoint of casting efficiency there is no doubt but it requires some coddling between seasons as well as in use, and bait casting is not a coddling game, but strenuous sport.

The object of splitting cane is to reduce the diameter and weight and utilize at the same time the hard outer covering or enamel. Ordinarily six sections are used, fitting similar to the way the divisions of a peeled orange are. Makers of eight strip rods claim for them superior action due to the rod being a true cylinder, but the proportionate amount of glue necessary to hold the slender strip pieces together may impair the action.

However, if a round rod is wanted get the eight strip rather than the six strip planed down, as the planing cannot help but weaken the rod.

The idea of splitting wood or cane and then fastening it together is of English origin, but the split bamboo rod as we know it today, according to Dr. Henshall, was first made by Samuel Phillips of Easton, Pa., about 1848. We do not deny that it was a more important discovery than the gold strike in California.

There are several varieties of bamboo used in rodmaking. The Chinese and Japanese canes are strong and resilient, but the joints are too short for good split rods, so they are used in the natural state for the common "cane poles." The best bamboo for California, but Perry Fraser, an expert, recently said that we may as well forget California, as it is impossible to obtain. The bamboo used today is Tonkin, which is a trifle stiffer than California, but an excellent material. Cal McCarthy, our local rod expert, says he prefers it for some rods.

Workmanship is what counts and it requires a high order of craftsmanship to select, split, straighten, glue, taper, or proportion a good fishing rod and consequently fine handmade rods come high—$10 to $25. Cheaper rods costing $5 to $10 are more or less machine made, and while they do not compare with the higher grades they make good, sturdy casting tools. Whatever price one pays for a rod it should be taken care of, as there is nothing of a knockabout nature in bamboo.

"THEY COULD BE SMALLER BUT NOT BETTER"

Don't worry about skin troubles. You can have a clear, clean complexion by using a little Zemo, obtained at any drug store for 25c, or extra large bottle at $1.00.

Zemo easily removes all traces of pimples, blackheads, eczema, and ringworm, makes the skin clear and healthy, and is neither watery, sticky nor greasy and stains nothing. It is easily applied and costs a mere trifle. Zemo's application. It is always dependable.

AMMONIA TANK EXPLOSION KILLS FIVE; 30 INJURED

Victims Crushed Under Tons of Debris in Brooklyn—Three Die in Buffalo.

New York, July 13.—Five persons were killed, one is missing and thirty others were injured, many seriously, today, when an ammonia tank in a Brooklyn butcher shop exploded, wrecking a four-story brick building.

So terrific was the blast that scarcely a brick in the building was left standing on another and the victims were crushed under tons of debris. A passing trolley escaped the avalanche of bricks, but a dozen passengers aboard were injured, some by shock and others by flying glass and debris.

The police fear that passersby may have been buried under the falling walls. Buffalo, N. Y., July 13.—Three laborers were killed and five seriously injured in the collapse of a superstructure surrounding a new building at the plant of the Smet Solvay company on the Niagara river road today.

The structure went down in a sudden squall that swept over Niagara river, and some of the workmen declared that the building was struck by lightning. About 100 men were at work in the plant when the collapse came.

Hello, Dad!

Say, mother wants me to drive her down town in the car, pick you up and all go to Buck & Rayner's 20th Century Cafe, State & Adams for dinner. She says it's cheaper than getting a meal at home and thinks we will all enjoy it better. Mother surely is in love with the home cooking at the 20th Century Cafe. I guess she heard how clean their kitchen is, too. All right, son, Good-by.

STATE SCRUTINY OF ORPET'S AIDS WANTED BY DADY

Youth's Landlady, Subpoenaed to Grand Jury, May Involve Carlin.

WILKERSON'S TALK BITTER.

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

Gentlemen, are the attorneys for the state to be permitted to shamble and shuffle and shift from one device to another in their mad effort to induce you to send this defendant to the gallows? James H. Wilkerson, former United States district attorney, faced the jury in the Orpet trial at Waukegan yesterday and plunged into the midst of a sensational exhortation of the prosecution's methods in developing its case against the college youth who is accused of the murder of Marion Lambert.

Ralph Potter, another of Orpet's counsel, had just taken his seat after accusing one of the prosecutors of "acting the part of a petty criminal and blackmailer." Wilkerson continued the attack on the public officials' good faith. "Cowardly, treacherous, conscienceless," were some of the adjectives he used.

State "Comes Back."

And in the midst of it all the state "came back" with a quiet little surprise of its own.

Since Monday Mrs. Edwin Taylor, at whose home in Madison Will Orpet lived when he was a student at the University of Wisconsin, has been sitting at the boy's side in the courtroom. As she stepped out during a recess she was served with a subpoena to appear before the Lake county grand jury at its last term.

The paper was handed her by Assistant State's Attorney E. M. Runyard, one of the Orpet prosecutors. He refused to show any light on the maneuver.

"We just thought it would be nice to have her around," he said smilingly.

Investigation of Carlin.

State's Attorney Dady was even less communicative, but from other sources it was learned the foundation is being laid for an attack on the methods of the defense through an investigation of the activities of H. G. Carlin, the special investigator employed by Orpet's counsel.

Carlin has been everywhere, and the prosecution has hinted more than once his visits to Madison were the reason for the disappearance as witnesses of four people from the Wisconsin case. Taylor, William Zick, Orpet's roommate; Otto Peterson, his chum, and Charles Hestinger, the drug clerk.

Carlin has talked also with one or two of the state's witnesses who have taken the stand only to prove "boomerangs," who helped the defense more than the prosecution. Josephine Davis, the last person except Orpet to see Marion alive, was one.

The grand jury is almost certain to be asked to inquire as to the refusal of the Madison people to testify, and it is said there may be charges of perjury.

Defense Not Alarmed.

The lawyers for the defense ridiculed all this when they learned Mrs. Taylor had been subpoenaed. Carlin's actions, they declared, will "wear the closest scrutiny." And as for the Wisconsin matter, they added, the Lake county grand jury would have no jurisdiction.

But it looks, nevertheless, as though the Orpet case is to produce a further escalation of the state's case. Tomorrow afternoon or evening, in any case, in the event of a disagreement, the state now has something to bring Mrs. Taylor into Lake county at the time when the second trial probably would be held.

Finish Plea Today.

Mr. Wilkerson is making the final plea for Orpet, and he probably will finish today.

He began quickly, leaning forward toward the jury, addressing now one and now another, going over with them, point by point, what he declared to be the inconsistencies of the state's case. Presently he reached a dramatic climax. He told of Orpet's cross examination by Special Prosecutor Joslyn.

"This defendant was on the stand," he said, "and they put him through—I will not call it a cross examination. That term has a meaning to state officials who try to get the truth. This was a brutal, this was a cowardly, this was a treacherous, this was a conscienceless police court attack."

Wilkerson was shouting now. He crouched low, shaking a menacing forefinger within an inch of one hapless juror's face. He sprang to his full height, waving his arms in the air. He turned

ORPETS NUDDGE DADY

State's Attorney Asks Judge to Warn Father and Son Against "Shouldering" Him.

It develops that State's Attorney Dady believes Orpet and his father have been showing their feelings toward the prosecuting officials in the courtroom. At the close of the session Dady asked Judge Donnelly to warn the two against "making repeated attacks on the state's attorney's office."

"We do not propose to put up with these insults," said Dady, heatedly. "Once the elder Orpet nearly threw me out of my chair."

"Just forget it," advised Judge Donnelly. The matter was reported to Mr. Wilkerson, as chief of Orpet's counsel, and Wilkerson said he would ask the Orpets to give the state's attorney at least five feet of clear space in passing out of the courtroom.

On Joslyn, sitting hunched up in his chair and staring straight before him.

It was an attempt to break down and smash to pieces this boy, who had been in jail nearly five months—a boy whose physical condition was weak. Yet this boy sat and faced it for four days, until objection after objection was sustained by this court, and they were forced to stop. But he stuck to his story. He told it in a way that he could not have told it unless he were absolutely innocent and were telling the absolute truth.

Cites Webster's Figures.

"The prosecutors charged that Will Orpet killed this girl with potassium cyanide taken from his father's greenhouse. When we showed that the Orpet cyanide was not potassium cyanide at all they took a different turn. But I want you to remember the figures of Dr. Ralph W. Webster, the state's own expert."

"He testified that the poison powder in Marion's hand showed 58.18 per cent potassium carbonate and 31 per cent potassium cyanide—58.18 per cent of the potassium compounds. The potassium cyanide from the Deerfield high school, where Marion was found alone the day before she died, was analyzed by Dr. Webster and found to be 91 per cent."

"There's the mathematical demonstration of what happened! I tell you, gentlemen, that thing wouldn't happen in a million times by accident. The girl herself got the poison of which she died from the high school laboratory."

"They have offered you declarations—so-called statements from this defendant. The one statement which the state didn't offer you was the note he addressed to his sweetheart in jail and sent back by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Claude Youker. Talk about fairness! Talk about giving the jury the whole truth!"

Mum on Penalty Demand.

Speculation around the courthouse centered on the penalty to be asked for by Joslyn in his closing address, will ask that Orpet be sent to the gallows. On this point the prosecution refuses to commit itself.

"It depends on how I feel," said Joslyn. "I don't know," said Dady.

PEACE EFFORTS DUE TODAY

TO END TERMINAL STRIKE.

Teup on Pennsylvania Freight Structure Involves 2,000 Workers—Sanctioned by Trades Body.

Efforts will be made today, it is expected, to bring about negotiations between the contractors for the new Pennsylvania freight terminal and the 2,000 workmen who yesterday went out on strike. For two months, which has been brewing for a long time, has tied up the big construction job. The strike was authorized by the Chicago Building Trades council and involves plumbers, steamfitters, gasfitters, electricians, carpenters, bricklayers, ironworkers, cement workers, and laborers. The use of nonunion men is said to be the chief grievance of the strikers.

PASTORS DEMAND LID ON GAMBLING AT HAWTHORNE

Tell Sheriff They Have a Tip
That Things Will Be
Wide Open.

TRAEGER EVADES ANSWER.

Sheriff John E. Traeger fought a lively verbal battle yesterday with the Rev. M. P. Boynton, pastor of the Woodlawn Baptist church and president of the Chicago Church Federation council, and the Rev. W. B. Millard, former executive secretary of the council.

The two ministers, who said they represented 300 churches and more than 300,000 people, visited the sheriff and requested him to prevent gambling at the races which are to be run at Hawthorne tomorrow.

"We are here to give you information which we received from a high source, which source we cannot divulge, and which we believe is sufficiently reliable to warrant our turning to you," said the Rev. Mr. Boynton to the sheriff.

Can't Stop Mental Bet.

Mr. Traeger replied that he would be indebted to the ministers for the information, and added that it was his duty to see that gambling was not allowed, but he added that he could not stop mental betting.

"We are told that it is proposed to put gambling in the Hawthorne race track on Saturday," continued the Rev. Mr. Boynton. "It is said the gambling will be on a gigantic scale, so that it will be permanently established as it was in New York."

No Bookmaking, Says Sheriff.

"All I can say is there will be no bookmaking, but so far as mental bets are concerned I am not the Almighty and I can't stop men making that kind of bets," said the sheriff. "I will have two justices of the peace on the ground."

"What about the Sunday closing booth?"

"That is a matter for the mayor of those towns. They have licenses. It is much better to grant them licenses than to have them operate without them. I would rather have the front door open in these places than to have them closed and have their rear door open."

Mr. Peters Explains.

"Why don't you go to the mayors of those towns and ask them to enforce the laws?"

"We are not citizens of those towns, so we came to you," the Rev. Mr. Boynton replied.

Here Mr. Peters, whose duty it is to act for the sheriff in many cases, stepped forward and said:

"You are in the right church, but the wrong people, gentlemen," said he. "Why don't you get the evidence and present it to the state's attorney? Then you can have the law violators indicted and prosecuted."

The ministers then left.

LUNCH STANDS UNCLEAN.

White City Booths to Lose Licenses Unless They Are Made Sanitary.

An inspection of ice cream and lunch stands in White City and in its vicinity yesterday by Dr. Albert J. Stokes, head of the food bureau, is said to have disclosed many instances covered with dirt, dust, and flies. Unless a cleanup follows the licenses of the violators will be revoked.

CALHOUN GOES TO HOSPITAL

Former Minister to China Suffering from Partial Stroke of Paralysis.

William J. Calhoun, former minister to China, was removed to the Presbyterian hospital yesterday. He is suffering from a partial stroke of paralysis received July 4 while a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lyford of Wheeling, and is unable to move his right arm and leg.

Calhoun stood the trip to Chicago well. He had a good day and was said by the hospital authorities to be improving right along. He is being attended by Dr. Frank Billings.

Joliet Attorney Sues Fisk Rubber Company on Mileage Warranty by Makers.

Joliet, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—William J. Helms, a prominent attorney here, today started a test case against the Fisk Rubber company of New York to force payment under a mileage guarantee on automobile tires. He said many tire dealers secure settlements because the amount is too small to sue for and motorists must buy the same make of tire to get a small reduction in price which does not cover the profit margin. Helms is suing for $50. He expects the case to go to the Supreme court, as it is a precedent.

Women's Ability to Swim Saves Two from Death

Men Near Drowning Rescued by Beach and Camp-meeting Heroines.

YOUTH LOSES HIS LIFE

The Chicago girl is athletic. In few other cities can so large a proportion of the women and girls swim. How great an asset this may be was proved yesterday to a woman and a girl who because of their athletic training were able to save the lives of two persons from drowning. At the same time at Chicago's new municipal bathing resort, Clarendon beach, built by the city especially to give its citizens this training, a boy sank to his death. It was the old story of "before they could reach him."

THE TALE OF A LESSON.

The four children of Samuel Rutkin, a fifty-fifth street tailor, were playing on the sand at East View park at the foot of East Fifty-third street yesterday and watching their father trying to learn to swim.

"Look at papa kicking around!" said little Mary Rutkin.

The child's exclamation attracted the attention of Mrs. Nelson B. Good of 5492 Cornell avenue, wife of the head of the Guaranty Mortgage and Trust company, who had come to the beach with her maid.

"That man's in trouble," she told bathers near her. They laughed and said he was only fooling.

Without stopping to argue, Mrs. Good rushed into the water and swam towards Rutkin, who went under before she reached his side. She called the attention of a 17 year old boy and asked him to help her. He said he couldn't swim.

Mrs. Good reached the man's side in time to grab him as he started to go under a second time. She swam with him until she could touch bottom. By this time others had come to her assistance and helped carry Rutkin to the beach, where the water was rolled from his stomach and lungs. He was revived sufficiently to be aided to his home.

THE CHURCH GIRL

Whatever may develop as a result of this incident—and such incidents frequently have led to developments—former Huntington of 6808 Osceola avenue, a graduate of the University of Illinois, owes his life to Miss Margaret Ingram of 4336 North Lincoln street, 19 year old daughter of William Ingram, a truck of the Methodist Camp Meeting Grounds association.

The couple had started out with a party of young friends for luncheon in the woods and a swim in a large clay hole near the Des Moines camp meeting. While near the Des Moines camp meeting, while in a few minutes he regained consciousness, he had misjudged the depth of the pool and struck on his head when he dived.

THE FATAL CRAMPS

The victim at Clarendon beach was Leon Hawes of 2413 North Albany avenue, a 19 year old student at the Chicago College of Osteopathy. He had gone to the beach with his chum, Vernon Carlisle, of 2545 Milwaukee avenue. Young Hawes, being the better swimmer, soon outdistanced his friend and was about fifteen feet beyond the outer line when he suddenly sank. He is believed to have been seized with cramps.

Carlisle and other bathers shouted to life guards and swam toward the spot where he had gone down, but he failed to appear and the guards were unable to divers several times before they succeeded in bringing him to the surface. An oxygen machine was used for nearly an hour in a fruitless attempt at resuscitation.

Pleased with New Plans.

Miss Young says she is very happy over her new arrangement, where she is to be one of the directors. "I have had so much trouble in the past with bad stories. Now I read and choose my own stories, and I can do what I want to."

"We have been all year assembling the people for our studio, the carpenters and stage hands and the like, and when we do begin to work we can get along rapidly with no delays. It is the delay, the waiting to get things ready, that makes motion picture work hard and expensive. We are renting the Solax studios now, and as soon as we go back I will begin work on 'The Common Law'."

"I don't know about doing any comedy. I think I would like to, but I did one light comedy for the world, 'Marrying Money,' and got very good notices on it, but it didn't sell well, so I don't believe people want me in that sort of thing. I rather like it myself, though."

Simple and Natural.

Miss Young talks easily and effectively. She has a small mouth closing over very even teeth, large brown eyes that participate expressively in her conversation, and she doesn't resort to make-up for social appearances. She is simple and natural in conversation, no more an actress than is a clubwoman.

"I don't want to do risqué things, and I don't want to play vaudeville," she insisted. "I don't like them."

Movie Star Head of Own

Enter the bedroom of a Blackstone suite at the interesting situation of Clara Kimball Young being buttoned into a silk all under all over lace frock by Mrs. Lewis J. Selznick.

Miss Young bowed and beamed at the enterers, while Mrs. Selznick kept on buttoning, then she clasped some diamond things around her neck, slipped some diamond things over her fingers, buffed her nails a bit, and led the way into the sitting room.

Seated on the eleventh story window seat looking out over the black string of I. C. tracks to the misty blue lake beyond, Miss Young drew some of her inner thoughts out of deposit and presented them to the scribe.

Poor Old I. C.

"It's a pity the railroads always spoil one's water front, isn't it?" she began, incriminating the puffing I. C. with her motion picture eyes. "You have it a little worse here than we do in New York."

Then we began on the business in hand. "No, I don't mind seeing the people this afternoon and evening at all. I enjoy meeting folks. But I am a little frightened about tomorrow. I'm going to speak at the Hamilton club then, and there is so much to say about the subject of pictures to people who know nothing about it that I'm afraid they will say it is just like a woman not to know when to stop talking."

"Pleased with New Plans." Miss Young says she is very happy over her new arrangement, where she is to be one of the directors. "I have had so much trouble in the past with bad stories. Now I read and choose my own stories, and I can do what I want to."

COLISEUM CLOSEUPS

BY BOB LEE.

On his motion picture stationery he is a director of publicity. The peccoliffins devoted to photographic clerly refer to him as an ambassador of journalistic promulgation. In the world at large he shrivels under the scornful appellation of press agent. In any event, we shall withhold mention of his name, for his first duty toward his client is respectful admiration.

"Just subrosa and for the sake of my wife and little ones don't print it," said he, "but I came across a statement which mentioned movie stars and heavenly bodies in the same breath."

"Very well," said he. "What do you want us to do? Cry?"

"No," he sighed. "Physically they may be heavenly, but spiritually—well, they're a little to the sandpaper."

As they jammed past the throne of Clara Kimball Young, they said they say beauty is only skin deep.

"Lovely complex—" "gotta know how to put it on—" "I'm gosh' home an' put arsenic in th' soup."

"My dear, are those wrinkles?" "They say she's 32—"

"I'd give anything if I—"

Of course, I think the public likes stories that have a certain kind of punch to them, but nothing risqué, just a delicate suggestion of things that might not be just almost perfectly correct, you know.

"I feel that I know the kind of things the public wants me to do. To please I must be well groomed, have a role with varying emotional values, and be in a story of strong dramatic interest."

Wants to Try Shakespeare. "And what I really want to do, besides making the pictures that we must to satisfy the demand through the year, is to put on some Shakespeare."

"Of course, we wouldn't have the wonderful lines, but we could tell the Shakespeare stories in a wonderful way, in the simple strong way they should be done to fit their spirit. I do believe the photoplay is a great instrument of education, and it can bring literature to people, just as the phonograph has brought music."

"You want to do Juliet first?" supposed I.

Miss Young laughed and consulted her diamonds. "No, I would like to put on Hamlet. O. no, I don't want to play Hamlet. I want to play Ophelia, but I'd like to put that on wonderfully well."

And then it was all aboard for the Coliseum, with no more time for Hamlet thoughts.

PUBLIC PLAYS IN FILLUM.

"Henry! Come away from there."

Here is a sample score card of a young woman who clad herself faultlessly in a sport shirt, a behavior self waist, a wobbly hat, and a facial glazing evenly adjusted as to depth and hue. She was mistaken for:

Edna Mayo, four times.
Mary Pickford, three times.
Eva Tanguay, one time.
Trislie Frigman, three times.
David Harum, two times.
C. Chaplin, one time.
And her name is Miss Sophie Glots.

Today is Metro day. But Francis X. Bushman won't be in the Coliseum. Neither will Beverly Bayne, nor any other Metro star. They say Francis is very busy down east, hence the stargazers will have to be content with an oil painting of the champion bachelor of the bedchambers.

Anyhow, murmured Aaron J. Jones, "maybe the oil will run a little and help amuse us."

"If you will notice closely," observed the Reichsbach of the World corporation, "you will see there are no blondes in this vast and colossal exposition. Why? Blondes register very much to the punk. Clara Kimball Young as a blonde would get about a dollar a week."

CONVENTION NOTES

Alice Brady is another Century comes this morning, though her official "day" isn't until Monday next. Beginning today, on the word of Harry Reichsbach, who tells the publicity truth for World, from the World booth, at the Coliseum, she will personally advise girls who are camera ambitious.

Tonight she will be guest of honor in Milwaukee at a dinner tendered her by the Wisconsin Exhibitors' league. Monday will be "Alice Brady day" and she will appear in the afternoon at the Coliseum and in the evening at the Studebaker, where her photoplay, "Miss Peticoats," will be presented.

The pretty girls who want to have a chance to start out being Mary Pickfords, Bessie Loves, and Alice Bradys are going to have a chance of their own at the motion picture exposition. It was decided last night, today a booth will be installed where all aspirants may leave their photographs, which will later be sifted through by the exposition's executive committee, and from them some one for body will be chosen as a screen possibility. She will be given a chance to work in a picture for some one of the producing companies, the detail of which just one not yet being decided.

Mary Pickford, who is tearing herself away from the delights of fixing up her new summer home overlooking Long Island sound, will come in on tomorrow's Century. She will put in a busy day seeing folks, going in the afternoon to the Coliseum and in the evening to Orchestra hall, and then to the annual settlement dance of the University of Chicago, which will be held in the Bartlett gymnasium.

Pauline Frederick. Famous Players-Lasky star, as they put it in these days of merging, will arrive this morning on the Twentieth Century, in anticipation of Paramount day tomorrow.

CROWDS THROG COLISEUM TO SEE CLARA K. YOUNG

Movie Star Enters Big Film
Exposition Headed by a Band.

SHAKES HANDS OF FANS.

BY KITTY KELLY.

The Motion Picture exposition at the Coliseum is continuing right along at a great rate of population. Yesterday was a day of solitary constellations, the special luminary being Clara Kimball Young, representing herself and her own company, in the tow of Lewis J. Selznick and Aaron Jones.

By an automobile parade, headed with a band, she proceeded up Michigan avenue in the evening and entered the Coliseum, the immediate center of a swirling mob of people. Folks swarmed around her, some shyly shaking hands, others passing by just looking. Some stopped; information seeking, as to the chances at screen stardom, and how best to get to be a famous filmstar. One elderly woman was detected in the act of trying to persuade Miss Young to read a scenario she had written.

Crowd Gathers at Booth.

Miss Young's entrance in the afternoon focused the crowd before her booth, though a bodyguard of policemen asserted the "keep moving" ideal. Among those coming in greeting was one who flung her arms around Miss Young and kissed her soundly.

"Oh!" said a feminine watchful waiter, "that's Rose Tapley of Vitaphone. I've seen her in pictures."

To her masculine escort's demur she retorted: "Sure, you know everybody from the screen."

Miss Tapley and Miss Young used to be player comrades during the three years that the latter spent with Vitaphone.

Vitaphone the Only Live One.

Vitaphone is, by the way, the only company that has honored the exposition with a continual live player representative. The Vitaphone day is not until Sunday, but Miss Tapley has been here from the beginning, and she is at the Coliseum booth dispensing powder puffs and toy balloons and smiles every afternoon and evening. At the other booths hired pretty girls do the company representing.

For the rest the evening was the same kind of a musical, mobbing bedlam. People wandered past the booths, collected printed matter, ate ice cream cones, took in the free movie show, and fox trotted festively above stairs.

Later Universal's ball at the Hotel Sherman carried the festivities far into the next day on the calendar.

Today a lull in interest looks imminent, for it is Metro day, with no further representation than players done in oil, but tomorrow is Paramount day, with Mary Pickford to represent Frederick to stimulate a little enthusiasm.

Still Wrangling.

While the exposition is going on at the Coliseum the convention is still proceeding wranglingly at the Hotel Sherman. The sessions are filled with speeches and arguments.

The main subject yesterday was the matter of organization for cooperation between all the different branches of the motion picture industry.

Society and Entertainments

Mrs. J. Allen Haines • Mrs. R.C. Chatfield-Taylor

Here we have, ladies and gentlemen, two of the leading stars of the great world's famous Lake Forest Country fair, which opens today. On the right you see Mrs. H. C. Chatfield-Taylor.

Taylor just about to waltz a post on which Mrs. J. Allen Haines has strange hold. Why is she about to take a spin at the post? Ah, that's the mystery.

C'mon out to Lake Forest and find out, and at the same time see the world's greatest country fair in full blast.

Lake Forest Fair to Have W.N.G.N.

A PUBLICATION which calls itself the "world's next greatest newspaper" will see the light of print for the first time today, and its circulation is guaranteed at 5,000 a day—for two days. The form of it is "The Midway Zone Eagle," and it will be on sale at the Lake Forest country fair grounds at Onwentsla club and nowhere else.

The departments will be many and varied. One of them which promises much amusement has the caption "How to Keep Well." It is not edited by Dr. Evans, but it is guaranteed to contain as scientific and efficient aid as his.

B. L. T. contributes the department "Our Village" and some of the inhabitants of "Our Villages," which include the north shore suburbs interested in the fair, are wondering just what the editor is going to do to them. B. L. T. is cryptic about it, so that no advance news is obtainable.

John T. McCutcheon is the art editor and his contributions surpass those of former years. Caroline Kirkland is the editor in chief and is assisted by Percy Hammond, Mrs. Robert Chatfield-Taylor, Wallace Rice, John Wentworth, who was last year's editor of the Harvard Lampoon, and Mrs. Laura Rogers McAuler.

Madame X of THE TRIBUNE will be the sporting editor of the Eagle and Augustus Peabody will do the society column. Richard Henry Little will send war correspondence from Brownsville. There will be descriptions of the suffrage ball and the suffrage parade and a special Midway Zone band of advertising.

Colonel and Mrs. Taylor E. Brown of 8210 Kenwood avenue have gone to Newport News, Va., to visit Lieutenant and Mrs. M. E. Brown. Lieut. Brown is at present attached to the U. S. S. Birmingham, flagship of the destroyer flotilla with base at Newport News. Mrs. Taylor E. Brown will remain in the east during July and then join Col. Brown and the family at their summer place, "The Hickories," Green Lake, Wis.

At the luncheon which was given at the Edgewater Beach hotel by St. Mary's College of Notre Dame club, there were 100 guests. The proceeds from the luncheon went to the building fund.

Prof. Francis I. Walker and his family of Wilmette will leave tomorrow morning for Louisville, from which point, after visiting relatives a few days, they will proceed to Asheville, where they will join an automobile party and tour the mountains of western North Carolina.

Prof. Halsey gave the third of the series of ten lectures on current topics at the residence of Mrs. W. O. Lindley in Lake Forest yesterday morning at 10:45.

Mrs. Edward F. Carry gave a dinner last night for her daughters, Miss Margaret and Miss Francis, and the youngest set. In the evening Mrs. John Hamilton gave a dance for them at Onwentsla club.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuel H. Grunewald have returned from the wedding trip to Colorado and are at home at their residence, 8322 Montrose boulevard, where they will receive their friends after Sept. 1. Mrs. Grunewald was formerly Miss Leona Ray.

Engagements.

Mrs. Frances E. Dillon of 204 Clinton avenue, Oak Park, announces the engagement of her daughter, Marion Margaret, to Robert Oliver Butts of River Forest, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Nachbar of 1008 Marshfield avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Anna, to Paul Ginzburg.

Emanuel Dinkelman of 5017 Prairie avenue announces the engagement of his daughter, Carolyn, to Emil Seckbach, son of Mrs. B. Seckbach of 6629 Indiana avenue.

Borrowed Timers Meet. A program of entertainment was provided yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the Borrowed Time club of Oak Park in honor of L. W. Keun of Springfield, who has been a member of that suburb forty-six years. The birthday of eight other members were also observed.

Women Threaten Old Line Parties.

PROGRESSIVES, prohibitionists, progressives, and suffragists may get together to organize a party which will bring terror to the Republicans and Democrats.

Miss Mabel Vernon of the Congressional union spent several hours in Chicago yesterday and left behind the above message. Miss Vernon's latest stunt in the suffrage campaign was to interrupt President Wilson's Fourth of July speech several times to ask him why he did not come to the assistance of the suffrage movement.

"Unless the Democratic party passes the national suffrage amendment before the presidential election," said Miss Vernon, "it cannot hope to get the votes of the woman's party." The party is to have a conference in Colorado Springs Aug. 10 to 12 to determine how to use its votes.

"The Republicans seem to take too much for granted. They think if we do not vote for the Democrats we shall have to vote for the Progressives. This is not true. They are not going to get our votes by default. They have got to do something to prove themselves worthy of our support. We don't intend to be as spineless as the Republicans think us."

"The Progressives already have asked for our support, and it may be that there will be a combination of the women with the prohibition party, the pacifists, and the Progressives who are not satisfied to join the Republican party; which will make a force the other parties will have to consider."

"We are hoping for a statement from Mr. Hughes before our conference in Colorado Springs. Much depends on what he says."

Miss Vernon said her action in heckling the president was not altogether spontaneous. It was planned in advance. She said the Congressional union leaders are considering a campaign of heckling against President Wilson.

Weddings.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Thomas of 5609 Blackstone avenue have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Queen Eleanor, and Hubert R. Eates Jr., which will take place Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The bride will be attended by Miss Helen Emeret as bridesmaid and her sister, Mrs. Frank M. Wright, as matron of honor. Her 5-year-old sister, Thekla, is her rosette maiden, and her 3-year-old brother, Billy, will be the ring bearer. Only relatives and intimate friends are invited to the quiet home wedding.

The bride and bridegroom will leave immediately for the south, to visit Mr. Eates' parents. On their return to Chicago they will be at home at 6066 Harper avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Gossel announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Joyce, to Beverly Winslow Howe. The bride is a graduate of Northwestern university, class of 1914, and has been very active in the Kappa Delta society for several years as treasurer of the grand body. Mr. Howe is originally from Carrollton, Ky., and has lived in Chicago about six years. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee and a graduate in law from the University of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Blakely of 171 North Lombard avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth to Lewis N. Rich of Oak Park.

The marriage of Miss Laurette Florence Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Kelley, to John Frank Dahme will take place tomorrow. After a trip through the west Mr. and Mrs. Dahme will be at home at 6808 North Ashland avenue.

University of Chicago Appointments. Prof. Frederick Woodward, dean of the law school of Leland Stanford Jr. university, has accepted a position as professor of law in the University of Chicago law school. Another new appointment at the University is that of Dr. Charles Mills of the University of Kansas to an associate professorship in the department of political economy.

Boy Scouts Leave Desplains Camp.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON. THE boys' camp, held in connection with the Desplains camp meeting, broke up yesterday after having proved its value as an adjunct to the camp meeting and having rendered help in several instances in first aid.

The boys' camp was composed of boys from Methodist Sunday schools, only a part of whom were boy scouts. The Rev. James V. Thompson of the board of Sunday schools was associated with Scout Master Rompel in the management of the camp.

In the afternoon the boys impersonated animals. They imitated bears, monkeys, and elephants, and gave an exhibition drill in marching and signal practice. Bishop W. S. Lewis and ministers watched the exhibition.

A wedding was another feature of the camp meeting. Miss Tillie Munson of 4744 West Gladys avenue was married to Arthur E. Miller of Forty-eighth avenue and Congress street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. F. W. Leemann, district superintendent, in the superintendent's cottage. Miss Carrie Keller was bridesmaid and Walter Miller, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The families of the bride and groom were present.

The families of the bride and groom were present. The families of the bride and groom were present. The families of the bride and groom were present.

"China would not have been so wantonly abused by Japan as she was if she had been prepared in a military way," he said. "I am convinced that America should have a good standing army and a strong navy, for America can be trusted to handle such a force where many other nations would abuse that kind of power and be ruined by it. America must prepare and at once."

The Rev. A. F. Clark of La Grange preached the afternoon sermon. He attributed to attendance on movie shows which portray vice much of the present day degeneracy in morals among young people.

"We become in character much like the things we look at," he said. "This is the age of the movie. Young people look on scenes of vice and crime with the result that there is a deluge of crime sweeping over the country."

The speakers today in the order named will be the Rev. W. W. Aylesworth, the Rev. L. H. Sweetland, the Rev. James V. Thompson, Bishop Lewis, the Rev. C. L. Hay, the Rev. J. W. Funston, the Rev. George MacAdams, and the Rev. Paul Rader.

Won't Let War Interfere with Wedding. Hugo Schmidt, who is to be married to Elfrida Kutsche of Bellitz, Austria, was postponed nearly two years ago. A war interfered. But Mr. Schmidt, who is a consulting engineer at 900 South Michigan avenue, refuses to wait until the war ends. He is sending a friend, a young woman of Russian birth, to get his fiancée.

Mr. Schmidt thought it better that Miss Ida Divinoff, a Russian violinist, should bring back the girl than that he should go, even though Miss Divinoff's countrymen are doing their worst to get into Bellitz while Miss Kutsche's are trying to keep them out. Mr. Schmidt was formerly an Austrian. He has been living with the Divinoffs at 2237 North Kedzie boulevard.

The marriage is to take place in Chicago instead of Vienna, as originally planned.

Winnepko Children at Ravinia. The children of Winnepko contributed to yesterday's entertainment at Ravinia, presenting a program of dances and a scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream."

In the Shakespearean episode Miss Betty Rogers was Titania, David Carpenter, Oberon; Joe Greeley, Bottom; Roger Sherman, Puck; Gladys Buck, Pease Blossom; Josephine Hoyt, Mustard Seed; Mildred Fox, Cobweb, and Virginia Berry, Moth.

Other young people who participated in the play were Genevieve Teske, Virginia Harned, Lillian Harned, Ronald Campbell, Catherine Lloyd, Paul Goble, Dorothy Scharf, and Alice Nelson. There were folk dances by a group of girls from the Glinton school.

Beauty Hints by Antoinette Donnelly

MARY-LEMON JUICE WILL whiten a brown and discolored neck. After thoroughly cleansing the neck with warm water and soap, rub the lemon on your neck and let it dry on. In the morning wash your neck in clear water. For preserving or obtaining a perfect outline of the neck practice the following exercise: Bend the head well down to the front and grasp the upper part of the back of the head with both hands, the fingers interlaced. Then by bringing the head back resist the movement by strong pressure of the hands. When the head has, however, slowly forced its way back, place your hands under the chin and press against the forward bending of the head. Repeat this back and forward movement from ten to fifty times. Then lean the head over towards the right shoulder, placing the left hand against the side of the head. Then bend the head slowly over to the left, pressing hard with the left hand in the contrary direction. When the head has come quite down to the left, take away the left hand and place the right hand against the right side of the head. The head then returns to the right side and the right arm resisting. Do this from ten to twenty-five times.

WILLAS: THE WHITE SPOTS ON THE nails are caused from lack of care in manicuring. Be careful not to raise the cuticle. The air gets under, takes away the nutrition, and causes the white spots. I shall be glad to send you my instructions for manicuring if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

IDA: THERE IS NOTHING THAT will keep your skin in shape except keeping yourself in good health. Eat nourishing food, get plenty of outdoor exercise, drink lots of water, and guard against constipation. I shall be glad to send you my dietary for gaining flesh, also treatment for pimples and blackheads if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

NELLE: THE FEWER RINGS YOU wear the prettier appearance your hand will make if you follow my instructions. A ring on the little finger is not becoming if the ring is not too large and fits the finger. Keep your nails nicely manicured so they will not detract from the effect of the rings. I shall be glad to send you my instructions for the care of the nails if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MARIA P.: I CANNOT GATHER with your skin what is wrong with your eyebrows. Do you mean that they meet above the bridge of the nose? If that is the case, you can take a pair of tweezers and pull out the hairs. Only pull out a few at a time. No, an application of cold cream on the face before using powder will not clog the pores. On the contrary, it keeps the powder from lodging in and clogging up the pores.

Catherine had an uncle who once in a while gave her a dime or a nickel. During one of his visits, when she had sat around quietly but expectantly for quite a while, she remarked to him that she was saving up. "Is that so?" he replied. "How much have you?" "Nothing," answered Catherine. "I have just commenced."

The Amateur Gardener by Eben E. Rexford

THE AGAPANTHUS and the AMARYLLIS. THE agapanthus is a plant that we seldom see in small collections, but it deserves a place in those of all flower lovers who delight in gathering plants that are unusual. For the decoration of the veranda in summer it is far superior to many we make use of there.

It is generally classed as a bulbous plant, but it is not a bulb. It has thick, fleshy roots which send up like leaves in profusion and a flower stalk, generally in midsummer, upon which is borne large clusters of beautiful lavender blue flowers.

The individual flowers are shaped like those of a lily, hence the popular name of the plant, "Lily of the Nile." An old plant often produces several stalks each season, and each cluster of blooms will contain as many as fifty or sixty flowers.

The place for this plant in winter is in the cellar. In the spring it can be brought to the light and given a warm place, and a new growth of leaves will soon start. Along about the first of June flower stalks will be sent up, and from that time to the end of summer it will be one of the most ornamental plants one can make use of in porch or veranda decoration.

Almost all amateurs undertake to grow the amaryllis, and most of them fail with it. This is because they do not understand the peculiarities of the plant. It has equally distinct periods of resting. Then it is equally distinct periods of resting.

In order to succeed with it each period must be made as complete as possible. After a rest the plant will take a fresh start, and the first indication of it is generally the production of a bud, while with most other plant leaves and branches come first.

After flowering, there will be a growth of new leaves. Then the plant will show a tendency to stand still, and in order to allow it to remain as nearly dormant as possible during its resting spell water should be withheld and it should be kept in a secluded place until there are indications of a tendency to resume activity, at which time a good fertilizer should be given to encourage full and free development.

The chief cause of failure on the part of the amateur is a neglect to recognize the importance of making each period of rest and growth as perfect as possible. It is kept in the window and watered all the season round, the same as a geranium, and because of this it fails to get the rest that is necessary to its successful culture, and the consequence is that it almost always fails to bloom.

Occasionally it will produce a few leaves, but these will lack the vigor of those which are produced after a period of complete rest.

Some friends called last evening and Raymond tried hard to keep awake.

Finally he said: "He wants to keep awake, but me face won't do it."

In the absence of their mother little John's two older sisters were finding it rather difficult to manage their mischievous 4-year-old brother. One day when he had especially tried their patience they reported the matter to their father just as they were sitting down to dinner. John's father promptly scolded him, and when he had finished, one sister, thinking that the culprit had not been sufficiently impressed, gave her ideas on the subject, and when she had concluded the other sister added her opinion. All this time John had made no remarks, but had calmly continued to drink his milk, only gazing attentively across the top of his mug at each speaker in turn. When at last they were silent he set down his mug and leaned back wearily in his chair. "O, gee," he observed dejectedly, "I wish I didn't have so much family."

"Nothing," answered Catherine. "I have just commenced."

Another novel style feature is the collarless neck, which seems to gain in popularity as summer advances. Such effects are quite round and decidedly low and not infrequently are finished with a narrow beading or ribbon banding.

In the accompanying illustration are two new models. The upper is developed in a beige and white striped organdie, darkened by tiny black lines. The neckline, bodice, deep scalloped girdle, and cuffs are faced with solid blue organdie. Loosely threaded through the bodice, straight girdle is a ribbon of solid blue which is tied in careless mode at the back of the waist.

The lower blouse is originated on simple lines. Made of heavy felt pink linen, this practical blouse is embroidered with white thread at the neck and sides, which are slashed as high as the linen girdle that ties in a square knot at the front. In striking contrast to the heavy linen is the fine organdie of the same lovely shade of pink which is used for the sheer sleeves.

Use white and green leaves alike, removing any which are tough or rusty and also any rusty leaf stalks. It is best to cook the leaves and stems separately, because the latter require longer cooking. It is not necessary to break off the leaves from the part of the stalk above the first ones if stalk and leaves are in good condition. Wash thoroughly in several waters, drop into boiling water, and blanch for five minutes. Drain, put back in the kettle, cover with boiling water slightly salted, and cook until tender, or about half an hour, not allowing the water to boil violently. Serve as you would other greens, being generous with butter. They are most wholesome if eaten with butter only.

Green celery stem is tender, yet it requires considerable cooking because it is so starchy—that is, contains more or less hard cellulose. It also needs considerable water or it will be bitter, whereas spinach is best if cooked in no more water than clings to its leaves. Soft celery leaves are delicious in a lamb stew.

There is a sort of tanning that is a fuller sign of health than that of a darkening of the skin. The eating of summer greens in abundance insures this unanemic condition.

Celery Greens. THE new bushy and green celery leaf and stalk cooked are even greater sweeters than spinach; that is, more laxative. Here is cellulose, indeed, which will work more vigorously and certainly than bran and is less gassy.

Wash thoroughly in several waters, drop into boiling water, and blanch for five minutes. Drain, put back in the kettle, cover with boiling water slightly salted, and cook until tender, or about half an hour, not allowing the water to boil violently. Serve as you would other greens, being generous with butter. They are most wholesome if eaten with butter only.

Green tanned by the sun the young, green celery stem is tender, yet it requires considerable cooking because it is so starchy—that is, contains more or less hard cellulose. It also needs considerable water or it will be bitter, whereas spinach is best if cooked in no more water than clings to its leaves. Soft celery leaves are delicious in a lamb stew.

Use white and green leaves alike, removing any which are tough or rusty and also any rusty leaf stalks. It is best to cook the leaves and stems separately, because the latter require longer cooking. It is not necessary to break off the leaves from the part of the stalk above the first ones if stalk and leaves are in good condition. Wash thoroughly in several waters, drop into boiling water, and blanch for five minutes. Drain, put back in the kettle, cover with boiling water slightly salted, and cook until tender, or about half an hour, not allowing the water to boil violently. Serve as you would other greens, being generous with butter. They are most wholesome if eaten with butter only.

These Summer Bran Dishes Keep You Well

There are many delicious ways to serve Kellogg's Bran in Summer. The most convenient of these are:

- (1) from the package with cream and sugar.
- (2) mixed with other cereal.
- (3) mixed with sliced or chopped fresh fruits and fruit salads.

Kellogg's Bran (COOKED)

Bran in its natural form, steam cooked to make it more palatable. A pleasant and sensible way to prevent and relieve constipation. Of better grocers. The Kellogg Food Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

COUNTRY SALES OF WHEAT LIGHT; PRICES STRONG

High Premiums in Southwest
Fail to Bring Out Grain;
Cables Higher.

Wheat prices had a sharp rally at the opening yesterday, but sold off later on heavy realizing. The market ran into supporting orders on a cent decline, and in the last few minutes shorts advanced the market materially. Net gains for the day were 1/16c higher. High premiums for new wheat in the southwest, with evidence of active competition between exporters and millers for offerings, and more black river reports from the spring wheat country were stimulating inferences.

Commission houses were good buyers on the decline, and local traders overbid the selling. Offerings at the close were light and shorts had difficulty in buying. Weather conditions were not materially changed, with the exception of heavy rains in parts of the Ohio valley. Conditions continue favorable in the northwest.

Cash Prices Show Advance.
Strong bids sent out from Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Louis met with response and there was a jump of 2/16c in Kansas prices for new wheat. New No. 2 hard at Kansas City was at a premium of 1/16c over the September. Country sales are light and there has been little hedging pressure on the market. So far little damage is threatened from black rust in the northwest, although the plague is present in many localities. The warm weather of the last two weeks has given small grains in the northwest rapid growth, and crop experts do not see more than the usual measure. Spring wheat receipts continue fair compared to last year, 248 cars compared to 129 cars.

Foreign Crops Are Poor.
Liverpool was 24 up and foreign news was more bullish. Late reports apparently indicate a serious shortage in crops in Europe, and buyers are beginning to be more concerned over future supplies. The indifference of winter wheat growers to present prices, with the uncertainty in our northwest, has created a broader demand abroad, where it is realized home production is going to be disappointing.

Corn Has Late Rally.
Corn showed a good deal of weakness following the early upturn, but later rallied and closed 1/16c to 1/8c higher for the day. Offerings were free from local traders, who sold on reports of rains in Nebraska, Kansas, and Illinois. From indications, however, showers were local and the forecast was for continued fair and warm weather. The cash demand was good and sales were 655,000 bu., including 450,000 bu. for exporters, making over 1,000,000 bu. for export in two days. Country sales do not increase much, but receipts were large at 308 cars, and primary and secondary receipts were 654,000 bu. compared to 602,000 bu. a year ago. Clearances were 37,000 bu. Argentine shipments were estimated at only 850,000 bu., compared to 1,600,000 bu. a year ago. Cables were 10 up to 10 1/2.

Export Sales Large.
Oats sales were 1,280,000 bu. for export, including 1,000,000 bu. for Argentina. Indications that foreigners are active buyers stimulated some support, but the general tone of the market was easier. Offerings from the country are moderate. Receipts were 632,000 bu., and primary and secondary receipts were 743,000 bu. a year ago. Clearances were 743,000 bu., continued hot weather was hastening maturity. Provisions were generally a little easier and the trade was quiet, with some realizing by the buyers of the previous day. The cash trade continues fairly active and the periodical buying of meats and lard by foreign firms steadies the market, while the firm hog market continues to encourage holders. Receipts were 12,000, compared to 46,000 a year ago. Liverpool prices were unchanged for meats, with September and lard 1 1/2 higher and cash lard 94. Shipments of products were large at 204 cars, with receipts small at 24 cars.

Rye Market Dull.
Rye was dull. No. 2 was quoted at 94c and part of a car of No. 3 sold at 94c. Receipts were 3 cars. Barley rye and malt. Malt was quoted at 72 1/2c and sold at 70 1/2c. Feed was quoted at 64 1/2c and sold at 64 1/2c. Screenings were quoted at 60 1/2c and sold at 60 1/2c. Receipts were 3 cars. Timothy seed was steady. September, $8.30 bid and $8.75 asked; cash lots were quoted at $4.00. Clover seed held steady, with cash lots quoted at $7.00. Flaxseed at Duluth closed 1/16c lower. Cash on track and July, $2.00; September, $2.00; and November, $1.99. Receipts, 4 cars. Minneapolis was 1c lower, with cash on track, $1.97 1/2; September, $1.97; and November, $1.96. Receipts, 12 cars. July, $1.97; September, $1.97; and November, $1.96. Receipts, 26 cars.

The Organization Behind Your Investment

When you buy a bond of N. W. Halsey Company you do more than simply make an investment. You secure the advantages and protection which come from investing money through an organization built up over a period of years on a foundation of rigid adherence to conservative investment principles.

We employ the best engineering, legal and counting talent to investigate bonds before buy them. And we sell only those bonds which have thus been investigated and deemed safe enough for the investment of our own funds. Our unqualified commendation goes with every bond we sell.

Our nine offices in this country and two abroad distribute millions of dollars' worth of safe bonds annually among banks and other investors.

On pages 7-14 of our fifty-page booklet, "The Most Satisfactory Bonds," you will be able to learn more about what we do to assure ourselves of the safety of our bonds.

We should like to send you this booklet with our circuit C55. Call or write or telephone Wabash 3980.

CONCRETE REPORT SHOWS BIG GAINS IN RECENT MONTHS

30,242 Deeds, with Total Consideration of $70,597,747,
Filed During Six Months.

Evidence of the continued healthy condition of the real estate market is afforded in the report of Recorder Joseph P. Connerly for the first six months of the year, which shows a substantial increase over the corresponding period a year ago. The number of deeds filed during the first six months of 1916 was 30,242, as compared with 28,400 in 1915. The total consideration of the deeds filed during the first six months of 1916 was $70,597,747, as compared with $67,447,619 in 1915. This is an increase of 3,040 in number and $3,150,128 in consideration. For June alone there were 4,816 deeds filed, as compared with 4,293 in 1915, and the total consideration for the month was $10,464,466, as compared with $9,747,619 in 1915. Under the regular abstract system there were 27,844 deeds, with a total consideration of $67,679,969, as against 26,381 and $65,318,330 for the six months of 1915.

Under the Torrens system there were 2,352 deeds recorded, with a total consideration of $2,917,778, as against 2,021 with a total consideration of $2,062,019. Applications for initial registration showed an increase of 104 in number and $850,900 in value of the property registered.

Cornelia Avenue Vacated.
A piece of vacant on Cornelia avenue, in Lake View, which has been in the Sheffield family for the last fifty years, and a noteworthy lease of store space in the loop district comprised the most important market developments of the week.

The vacant and the lease of store space in the loop district comprised the most important market developments of the week. The vacant and the lease of store space in the loop district comprised the most important market developments of the week.

Mr. Roche has subdivided the tract into forty-two lots, thirty of which face on Cornelia avenue, with a frontage of thirty feet each and a depth of 143 1/2 feet, while the business lots on Halsted street and Sheffield avenue have a frontage of twenty-five feet. Mitchell Bros. were the brokers in the transaction, and the plan was drawn by the Harris Trust and Savings bank attended to the legal details for the Sheffield, while Frank J. R. Mitchell represented Mr. Roche.

Wall Paper House Leases.
In the downtown building lease William P. Nelson, president of the American Wall Paper company, leased for a ten-year term the corner of the Thomas Church building, 32-34 South Wabash avenue, for a period of seven years at an annual rent of $15,000 from Sept. 1. The entrance will be remodeled and the place will be occupied as a retail saleroom for wall paper and paints. The lease was negotiated by Clark & Trainer in connection with Albert H. Wetten & Co.

Costly Flat to Go Up.
A high grade apartment building is to be erected at the northeast corner of Pearson and Greenview streets, a tract of ground by George Campbell, which he has just purchased from Kathleen M. H. Bealy. The consideration is withheld, but it is said the property has been held at $25,000. It is stated that the proposed building will be of an exceptionally high grade character, a feature of which is that every room, with the exception of the servants' quarters, will have outside street frontage. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

Record was made of the conveyance by the Northern Trust company, trustee, to the Merchants' Loan and Trust company of the property in South State street, 186 feet south of Eighteenth street, 60 1/2 feet wide, to the elevated road right of way, for an indicated consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000.

$25,000 Deal in Fargo.
The property in Fargo avenue, 300 feet west of Greenview avenue, lot 50x150 feet, north front, with apartment improvements, has been sold by R. C. Cockburn to Mary A. McCarthy for an indicated consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000.

Record was made of the transfer by the Northern Trust company, trustee, of an undivided one-third interest in the property at the southeast corner of Clark and Harrison streets, 100x100 feet, and the 50x150 feet in South State street, 247 feet south of Harrison street, east front, to George R. Baker of New York and Bertha H. Baker, a nominal consideration being given. The transaction is a family matter and has no market significance.

W. H. Johnson has subdivided a large holding at Everett avenue and Fifty-fifth street, extending east to the lake, and placed it in the hands of McGuire & Orr, whose policy in handling it, they announce, will be to invite the collaboration of other brokers. The property formerly was owned by Charles B. and Edward A. Shedd, and is one of the choicest holdings on the south side, having a total frontage of 1,217 feet, with a depth of 247 feet, and overlooking the lake.
